

Jerome fish, game office plans set

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — The Idaho Fish and Game Department will build a new regional office in Jerome, Joseph C. Greenley, director of the department, said Saturday.

Greenley said the Idaho Fish and Game Commission gave unanimous approval to locating the new regional offices in Jerome at a meeting in Boise Friday.

The announcement culminates seven years of speculation as to the location of the new headquarters. Seven years ago the fish and game department announced plans to move the regional office from Jerome to Twin Falls.

The department came under heavy criticism from Jerome County residents for the decision at the time, then reconsidered.

In September, 1972, the fish and game department again looked into possible sites in Twin Falls as well as Jerome for the new regional office. Speculation as well as opposition was raised by Jerome residents and northside legislators.

Greenley would not disclose the definite location of the new office at this time, saying the department was still dealing for the land and all papers were not signed.

He did say, however, the office would be located next to the city of Jerome and not at the Idaho Fish and Game Bird Farm which is two and one-half miles southeast of Jerome.

Greenley added the bird farm would remain and would neither be downgraded or phased out as has been recently rumored in Jerome.

Greenley estimated the new office would cost between $80,000 to $100,000.

The cost will of course be determined by the final architectural design and the final bids. However, we have budgeted for over $80,000 for the new office," Greenley said.

Construction is expected to begin as soon as all papers are signed and the bids are let. "We hope to have our Magic Valley office personnel in their new headquarters by July 1, 1973," Greenley said.

There are presently eight fish and game personnel in Jerome County.

Greenley explained that one of the major reasons for locating the new office in Jerome was the high cost of land in Twin Falls and the wishes of Jerome residents to maintain the office in Jerome.

Our reasons for not locating the new office at the bird farm were mainly due to water and sewer needs. By locating the office close to Jerome, we will be able to hook up to the city sewer and water system, thus saving the department money. Also by locating the office close to Jerome it will be more accessible to sportsmen," Greenley said.

Viet sessions resume Monday

PARIS (UPI) — White House aide Henry A. Kissinger completed a week of secret peace negotiations with Hanoi representatives Saturday and scheduled a new session with them for Monday. In the meantime the two sides called a unprecedented technical level meeting for Sunday.

Kissinger's deputy, Gen. Alexander Haig, left Paris for Washington at 10:30 p.m. Saturday to report to President Nixon on the result of last week's meetings.

The U.S. delegation said experts from the U.S. and North Vietnamese delegations will hold a technical session Sunday.

Bush pilot survives

YELLOWKNIFE, Northwest Territories — A 45-year-old bush pilot was found alive Saturday after surviving 31 days in the sub-zero arctic wasteland. Three other persons aboard his plane, on a medical mercy flight when it crashed, died during the ordeal.

Martin Hartwell, 45, was hospitalized in apparently good condition.

The plane was on a 500-mile mercy flight from Cambridge Bay, north of the Arctic Circle, to Yellowknife Hospital.

David Lambertson said he could not state the purpose of Sunday's technical-level meeting — the first such known session in the 4½-year-old Paris talks. Diplomats theorized the meeting might be charged with putting into writing details of possible compromises reached by the top negotiators themselves.

They took as a hopeful sign the fact that Kissinger decided to stay in Paris and announced through the spokesman another meeting for Monday.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two more bodies were pulled from around the wreckage of a jetliner Saturday, bringing the death toll of Friday's crash in a residential area near Midway Airport to 45.

Federal investigators searched the scene, where two houses were completely destroyed, and probed control tower records seeking the cause of the crash of the United Air Lines craft. They said the search for bodies ended Saturday morning and two of the dead were believed to be residents of one of the destroyed homes.

Mrs. Westwood gave up the job with a plea to the party to hold fast to the reforms that shook it to its foundations during the last year.

"In his first appearance before the committee as chairman, Strauss said 'I belong to no man, I am owned by no group or organization I sacrifice no principles to gain this chair and I will sacrifice none to retain it'."

Strauss described himself as "a centrist, a worker, a doer a putter-together and these talents belong to you." He said anyone who expected him to lead a movement to back-track from party reform was "in for a rude shock."

Strauss took over the gavel and quickly pushed through approval of a roster of 107 members of a new party commission to work on basic revisions in the party structure. The list was made up by the national executive committee, under Mrs. Westwood, and Strauss added her to its membership.

The executive committee put over action on adding 25 members to its own roster and closed out the nine-hour session.

Despite her narrow victory against ouster, Mrs. Westwood was the big loser of the day in failing to force Strauss out of the race to succeed her. But the party reformers she represented were able to get from the Texan repeated public pledges that he would not try to roll back the changes they instituted last summer, and to get him to promise to avoid ideology during his chairmanship.

Strauss redeemed at least part of those pledges by accepting with only the addition of Mrs. Westwood's name the 107-member commission nominated by her to work out basic revisions in the party's structure.

Strauss told reporters he also had pledged to increase representation of Negroes on the national committee when it votes to increase its membership at its next meeting.

BOISE — Six Magic Valley legislators were named to head committees of the 42nd Idaho Legislature Saturday.

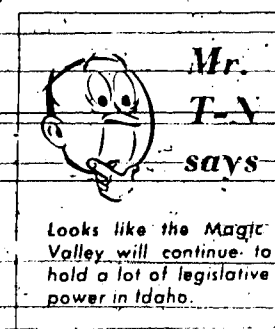

Their selection came as the legislature set up standing committees for the session opening in January.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, was appointed chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Sen. John M. Barker, R-Buhl, was named chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee. Both men headed those committees in the second session of the 41st Legislature.

In the House, Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, was named chairman of the Appropriations Committee. He served as vice chairman a year ago.

Other chairmen appointed from the Magic Valley are Rep. Steve Anton, R-Rupert, Business Committee; Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, Local Government; Rep. J. Vard Chatburn, R-Albion, Resources and Conservation. All headed those committees a year ago.

A full listing of House and Senate standing committee assignments is on p. 7.

Looks like the Magic Valley will continue to hold a lot of legislative power in Idaho.

Daughter, wife hear HST voice

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S. Truman, resting better than at any time in recent days, spoke a few soft words to his wife, daughter and doctor Saturday. When asked if he was feeling better, the 88-year-old former President whispered: "Yes."

"He spoke for the first time," said Truman's daughter, Margaret Daniel. "I would say he is better, but not out of the woods by any means."

Although still critically ill, doctors reported Truman's aged and ailing heart was gaining strength. Mrs. Daniel said her father looked better and continued to appear optimistic about his recovery.

Senate test halts meet

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's 42nd Legislature abruptly adjourned its organizational session with an uncompleted calendar Saturday after a partisan test of strength in the Senate.

President Pro Tem James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, brought the session to its sudden ending by moving for adjournment sine die when the Democrats blocked an attempt to change the order of business.

While the Republicans have an overwhelming majority of 51-19 in the House their 23-12 majority in the Senate is one vote short of two-thirds control. It takes at least a two-thirds majority to change the order to business on the Senate calendar unless the body is moving forward.

When Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Idaho, attempted to back up the order of business to consider a concurrent resolution on fiscal notes Minority Leader John Evans, D-Malad, objected.

Chicago crash toll 45

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two more bodies were pulled from around the wreckage of a jetliner Saturday, bringing the death toll of Friday's crash in a residential area near Midway Airport to 45.

Federal investigators searched the scene, where two houses were completely destroyed, and probed control tower records seeking the cause of the crash of the United Air Lines craft. They said the search for bodies ended Saturday morning and two of the dead were believed to be residents of one of the destroyed homes.

Eighteen persons aboard the plane, United Air Lines flight 633 from Washington, D.C., to Omaha, Neb., with a stop at Chicago, survived the crash, some with only minor injuries. All three stewardesses were among survivors.

The dead included Rep. George W. Collins, D-Ill., who had just won his second term in Congress, and all three members of the flight crew, including pilot W.L. Whitehouse, 44, Springfield, Va.

Michelle Clark, news correspondent for the CBS network, was aboard the plane and was among those presumed dead. She lived in Washington but was a Chicago native. Bodies of many of the victims were burned so badly that officials said dental records would have to be used to identify them and the process could take days.

chief for the National Transportation Safety Board, said at a news conference that the United plane had been given a "missed approach" instruction seconds before it disappeared from the radar screen of the Midway control tower "and that's where the mystery begins."

He said a preliminary check of the site failed to produce any clues as to the cause of the crash.

The instruction, a "fairly frequent" one-to-pilots, came when the Boeing 737 jetliner was inside the outer marker of the airport, which is 3.3 miles from the end of the runway, Lamb said. The "missed approach" means a pilot should make a 180-degree turn, climb to 2,000 feet and come in again, he said.

A private twin-engine prop Aero Commander plane had come onto the control tower radar screen ahead of the United plane, Lamb said, and the smaller plane had also been given a "missed approach" instruction and was making its second approach when the turn around directive was given to Whitehouse.

He was instructed to land on runway 311, Lamb said, and was making an instrument approach.

The voice recorder in the jet had been recovered from the wreckage and was being sent to Washington to be analyzed.

Fierce Vietnam battles ease off

SAIGON (UPI) — Fierce ground fighting throughout South Vietnam tapered off in intensity Saturday, but South Vietnamese military spokesmen Sunday reported Viet Cong forces on the move in the Saigon area. American bombers continued to pound Communist supply lines for the fourth straight day.

The U.S. command ordered more intense bombing raids at Vietnam's mid-section around the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in an effort to choke off North Vietnamese troops and equipment from moving into the south, the U.S. command said.

The air raids prompted a Radio Hanoi broadcast to say American air raids have dimmed the prospects for peace in Vietnam.

The authoritative Saigon newspaper Tin Song (Live News), partly financed by President Nguyen Van Thieu's nephew and closest adviser, said Thieu would expand his cabinet to include anti-Communist parties other than his own in order to give his government broader representation in the event of a cease-fire.

After air strikes in the area Friday and early Saturday in which more than 100 sorties (one mission by one plane) were flown, the American air raids continued Saturday afternoon and early Sunday. At least 25 B-52 missions, each with an average three planes and 90 tons of bombs, were flown. The bombing is concentrated along Vietnam's 80-mile-wide waist near the DMZ at the 17th parallel which separates North and South Vietnam.

Since Wednesday the B-52s from Guam and Thailand have dropped more than 5,000 tons of bombs near the DMZ.

The Saigon command reported scattered heavy fighting in the northern part of South Vietnam Saturday, but the number of "enemy-initiated incidents" fell to 58 from the 83 reported Friday. Friday's fighting was the heaviest in a month.

Militiamen 15 miles north of Saigon set a precautionary ambush before dusk Saturday. It paid off two hours later when a Viet Cong force of about 32 men walked through the government "kill zone." Six Communists and two militiamen were reported killed.

Mishaps sparked clashes

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Racial trouble aboard the carrier Kitty Hawk was the result of a series of misunderstandings, the chairman of the congressional team investigating the riots said Saturday.

"It seems to me the whole thing stems from a misunderstanding," Rep. Floyd Hicks, D-Wash., said after the fourth day of secret hearings ended.

Asked to elaborate, he said, "To attempt to answer that would be going into all the hearings. Any problem that occurred basically was the result of a misunderstanding."

"Our purpose is to straighten it out in our thoughts and find ways to alleviate the situation."

"The chairman doesn't mean to imply this is the only thing we've concluded," Rep. W.C. Daniel, D-Va., another member of the three-man subcommittee said.

"We're not here simply to look into this incident. To develop a more effective Navy is our purpose."

The congressmen declined to say where they were going until the investigation resumes Monday, but they indicated they would not return to Washington, D.C. until Wednesday.

Forty-six crewmen were injured Oct. 12-13 when rioting broke out aboard the Kitty Hawk which was en route to Vietnam. Twenty-one black crewmen later were flown to San Diego to face court-martial.

Louella Parsons dies at age 91

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Louella Parsons, the first and most famous of the Hollywood columnists who outlived the era in which she reigned as the feared queen of the boudoir gossip, died Saturday at 91.

Miss Parsons covered the Hollywood beat for 40 years and was the foremost teller of tales about the private lives of the stars, especially dwelling on their amours and pregnancies.

She fiercely established herself as reigning power in the now obsolete world of personal journalism. Her columns frequently began with such phrases as "I learned exclusively" or "my first exclusive."

If she had written her own obituary it probably would have read:

"All Hollywood mourned today the death of Louella Parsons, premier Hollywood columnist and beloved chronicler of the lives and loves of famous movie stars."

Miss Parsons was feared and hated as well as loved. But she also involved herself in the lives and careers of film personalities and she helped many of them.

As one star said, "Louella was a peculiar combination of star and fan."

TF won't spend until sees check

TWIN FALLS — City Council members are not spending any revenue sharing funds until they see the check, City Manager Jean Milar said Friday.

He said the city has not received any official notification of the amount of revenue sharing it can expect or when it is expected.

Reports from Washington, D.C., Friday indicated Twin Falls City will receive about $156,000 with checks to be in the mail in a week.

Milar said if the check arrives before the end of the year it will be budgeted in the 1973 budget for the city which is now being prepared.

Milar said the city believes the amount will be between $150,000 and $160,000. It is to be received in two 1972 payments and thereafter for a four-year period in quarterly payments.

Milar said this will be considered in preparing the 1973 city budget. Unless funds are budgeted for a given year the city cannot spend them and therefore all 1972 payments, regardless of when the checks arrive will be held over until 1973 for budgeting and expenditures.

Milar said the City Council members have been diligent in their effort to study regulations and provisions of the revenue sharing program in order to be prepared for administration of the funds.

He said he has furnished the council with a list of some 50 items, including such capital improvements as new fire and police building facilities, for their consideration in setting priorities for the funds.

These 50 items come from all departments of city government and include such things as buildings, small equipment items and streets and recreation items.

Milar said the City Council will set the priorities for the Candidate says board at CSI not doing its job

TWIN FALLS — Stanley Wachtstetter, student candidate for the College of Southern Idaho board of trustees, said Saturday the board is not doing its job.

"The problems of faculty dissatisfaction, the library and so on," Wachtstetter said, "are the result of the board of trustees not doing their job. Some have tried to bring Dr. Taylor's name into the developing fray. However these problems cannot be pushed off on Dr. Taylor."

Asked if he himself was not in fact responsible for bringing CSI president Dr. James L. Taylor's name into issue in the board election, Wachtstetter said that had not been his intention.

"He said his earlier statement that the board had degenerated into a rubber stamp of approval for Dr. Taylor's plans" was intended as a criticism of the board and not Dr. Taylor.

"But it is obvious some have taken it that way," he added. "Dr. Taylor is doing an excellent job, working hard and earning his salary," he said.

Wachtstetter said it was his opinion that an editorial in the Times-News and subsequent letters to the editor have done more to make an issue of Dr. Taylor's function than had his earlier statement.

"Unless the board is informed by the administration, they do not act," Wachtstetter said. He said this was the meaning intended by his "rubber stamp" statement.

"I'm not running against Dr. Taylor, I'm running against Mr. Hepworth," he added.

Wachtstetter said the problems at CSI can only be solved by the board doing its job.

"As an example of the ineffectiveness of the board, we can look at this election," he said. "State code stipulates it is the responsibility of the board of trustees to oversee and maintain the election of trustee members. Yet, so many laws have been violated and will be violated in this election."

"For example," Wachtstetter said, "state law stipulates it is illegal to vote if you have committed treason, a felony or certain other crimes. Yet, the elector's oath does not disqualify these individuals. Why is this happening? Obviously, the board is not doing its job. This cannot be blamed on Dr. Taylor or anyone else."

Fire ax feared for US mental health program

BOISE (UPI) — An official of the National Association for Mental Health says the Nixon administration may "take a fire ax" to federal mental health programs this year.

Raymond Glassco, chief of the joint information service for the association and the American Psychiatric Association, made the prediction at the Idaho Mental Health Association's annual meeting Friday.

The Nixon administration is going to take a fire ax to as many HEW health, education and welfare programs as it can," Glassco said.

There are 200 of them and the mental health program is among them," he said. "There are reasons to think it's one of their prime targets."

A White House aide recently described the National Institute for Mental Health as one of what he called "the bloodsucking social programs" the administration wants to cut. Glassco said.

The main thing this would do to Idaho would be to reduce federal funds coming for community-based mental health programs, including possibly alcoholism treatment programs and conceivably even drug treatment programs, he said.

Kimberly donors listed

KIMBERLY — Kenneth Naylor received a five-gallon pin at the Thursday blood drawing at the Kimberly Grange Hall.

Other pin winners were Mrs. Nadine Froehlich, four gallons; Lewis Reed, two gallons; Mrs. Jeanne Earl, John Schaub, Ralph Taylor and Mrs. Alice Pmkston, all one-gallon pins.

The drawing fell beneath the 100-pint quota. Only 68 pints were collected.

Plan slated

TWIN FALLS — A land use plan being prepared for Twin Falls County will be presented on schedule next Thursday to the planning and zoning commission.

County zoning administrator Ed Woods said today he and commissioner Merle Leonard and other county officials, as well as people from other Magic Valley counties, had met Thursday with Prof. Ross Pasolino who is preparing the study.

Woods said the study would be presented to the county committee at a Dec. 14 banquet.

Pasolino, a professor at Idaho State University, has been at work on the plan for about nine months.

GOP chairman approves choice

TWIN FALLS — The Chairman of the Twin Falls Republican Central Committee, Doug Kramer, complimented his Democratic counterpart Saturday on their choice of William Wiseman as county commissioner.

"I think Mr. Wiseman has served well on the Twin Falls County hospital board and did this area service on the first Junior College board of trustees," Kramer said. "I am sure he will not be a divisive force on the county commission and that he will be able to work well with all office holders in the county."

Kramer was content to let the togetherness end there.

Leaves today

TWIN FALLS — Debbie Skinner, Twin Falls Junior Miss, is scheduled to leave today for Moscow to compete in the Idaho Junior Miss Pageant.

Miss Skinner is scheduled to fly to Moscow aboard a Hughes Airwest flight at 8:45 a.m.

The state pageant will continue through Dec. 17.

Miss Skinner was chosen in a pageant in Twin Falls in November, conducted under auspices of the Jaycee chapter here.

Senators and representatives of the area will meet at the College of Southern Idaho trustee board room at 9:30 a.m. to discuss the board of education plan for recommendations for reorganizing school districts within the state and new plans for school finance, according to Don Watkins, public relations official for the department of education.

Charges filed in robbery

TWIN FALLS — Formal charges were brought Friday against a second defendant in the armed robbery Nov. 20 at the Twin Falls Union Bus Co. Depot.

James Skipper Robinson, 21, Twin Falls, appeared before Magistrate Daniel Meehl on one charge of robbery and one charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Bond was continued for the defendant at $20,000, in spite of a plea from his public defender, Monte Carlson, that it be reduced.

Earlier this week, Paul John Bjornson appeared in magistrate court on identical charges.

The accusations stem from the armed robbery and shooting at the bus company station in the early morning hours of Nov. 20.

TF larceny case draws sentence

TWIN FALLS — James Skipper Robinson, 23, Twin Falls, was sentenced to six months in the county jail Friday on a charge of petit larceny.

Robinson had originally been charged with robbery in the case, but had entered a plea of not guilty. The charge was then reduced a week ago to petit larceny, on the basis of the results of a lie detector test which Robinson took, and the defendant entered his plea of guilty to the new charge.

Man gets jail term

TWIN FALLS — Robert Jasso was given a six-month suspended sentence and ordered to jail for the first 10 days of his probation Friday in charges stemming from attempted escape from jail.

Jasso, 31, was charged in connection with an escape he attempted while being held for trial on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern, in the torrid factional brawling over the Democratic national chairmanship, proceeded true to form.

The South Dakota radical gave Chairman Jean Westwood the same scolding treatment he met when he was elected to the Senate in 1964.

Both got the boot while McGovern piously avowed high regard for them.

Last July, he personally handpicked Mrs. Westwood, fervent Utah supporter, for national chairman. A brief five months later, he blandly washed his hands of her.

Adding injury to insult, he, in effect, endorsed Robert Strauss, Dallas attorney and former national treasurer whom Mrs. Westwood sought out to prevent replacing her.

McGovern gave his approval of Strauss in a secret telephone conversation with Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers, head of the Democratic governors' caucus.

The long-distance call occurred during the St. Louis meeting of the caucus which adopted two resolutions: one asking Mrs. Westwood to get out, the other decisively favoring Strauss as her successor.

Both declarations were voted despite a tearful plea by Mrs. Westwood that she be retained.

In the midst of the tense closed-door deliberations, McGovern phoned Bumpers from Washington and told him he had no objection to Strauss being installed as national chairman.

"Bob isn't my first choice," said McGovern, "but I like him and I am sure he would be a fair and able chairman."

Three factors were behind McGovern's backstage ditching of Mrs. Westwood:

(1) Inevitability of her ouster; (2) pressing need for the good will and financial support of party regulars; (3) uneasiness over a highly uncertain reelection battle in 1974 when he runs for a third term.

It was only a few weeks ago that Sargent Shriver, modish Kennedy in-law, was jet-setting about the country orating and declaiming loudly and vehemently. In the headlines, on radio and TV he was daily seen and heard.

Yet the other day, when the August New York Times published a letter from him on its editorial page, the editor felt it necessary to add the following italicized explanatory footnote: "Sargent Shriver was Senator McGovern's running mate."

Sic transit gloria mundi! Or in the vernacular — out of sight, out of mind.

It's highly doubtful anything will come of those loud Democratic fusillades about Republican campaign funds — for one very good reason. The Democrats are in no position to point an accusing finger at anyone.

Already being strongly touted as his opponent is Gov. Richard Knipf, 39, who won a second term with more than 60 per cent of the vote — while McGovern lost his home state with around 45 per cent of the vote. Also not helping McGovern is the fact that two years hence South Dakota, normally Republican, will have two Democratic Senators — of New Left stripe.

Cracking Noise

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Whenever I eat, yawn or even talk at times, the facial bones close to my ears make noise like my bones are cracking. It is very annoying and I feel that people can hear it, too, but there is no pain at all. — T. Y.

The noise you hear is in the jaw joint — and you are fortunate that there is no pain and haven't dislocated the joint.

There are different possible causes, and it is worthwhile to check them out. First is faulty occlusion or "bite." The teeth don't come together correctly, which throws the jaw joint out of line. This can be readily checked by your dentist.

Another possibility is faulty coordination of the muscles you use to open and close the jaw.

Third, it could be arthritis of the jaw joint, but since there would be some pain with this, I dare say you can discard that possibility.

When the trouble stems from poor coordination of the jaw muscles, appropriate exercises are in order. Dr. John Ward recommends these: Opening the mouth against resistance (that is, pressure under the chin), which can be applied simply by pressing your fist upward against your chin. Then closing against resistance (tapping pressure downward on the chin). Also wiggling the jaw from side to side, and protruding it against resistance.

He also recommends chewing on a small piece of wax — more resistance than in chewing gum.

These are simple, but have produced good results.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you print a diet for obesity in your column? — Doty.

I'd rather not because any reducing diet short enough to print in this space would be too rigid and monotonous, and nobody would tolerate it very long.

An obesity (reducing) diet that will do any permanent good has to be flexible. It has to contain necessary nutrients but it can get them from different sources. Exercise, no nibbling.

spacing of meals and a lot of other things all go into a reducing plan that will really work.

I've put all this into booklet form "Lost Secrets of Reducing", which runs 36 pages and about 8,000 words. Send 35c and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for copy. I've also put about 30 other health problems into booklet form, and if you'd like a list of such booklets, and how to get any of them send me a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for the list of booklets.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 15-year-old girl. Can you tell me what causes my navel to give a bad odor and a yellow discharge? I wash every night. Is it important to see a doctor? I've had it quite a while. — N. K.

Pretty clearly it's infection of some sort, and could be related to a urachus — that's the inward extension of the umbilical cord — that didn't quite close when you were born.

Whether that or something else, yes, it's important to see a doctor and see what needs to be done to clean up the infection.

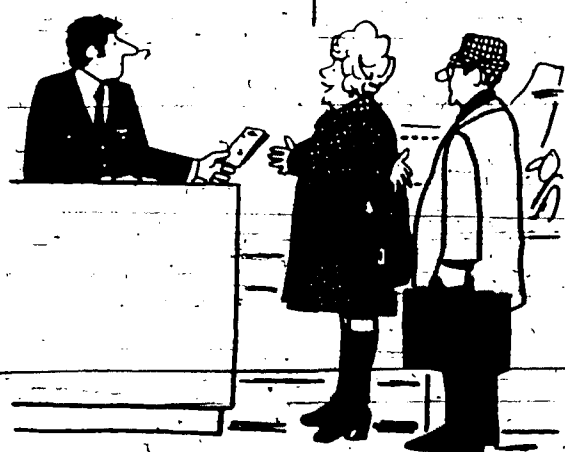

Dear Dr. Thosteson, I fell and fractured my right floating rib. I am 72 and in good health. Movement of my back causes some pain. My doctor said this will heal without any binding or treatment, is this so? — B. F. S.

Yes, it's so. It may take a little longer at your age than it would for a younger person. A binder will not hasten healing although it will decrease movement and in that way make you more comfortable.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's newly revised booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Stop The Election

The College of Southern Idaho trustee election, scheduled for Dec. 19, should be postponed.

Important legal questions have been raised. They should be answered before any vote is permitted.

The questions are fundamental:

1. Who is running against whom? Is there one race with seven candidates seeking two seats? Or are there two separate races, one with five candidates and one with two candidates?

2. Can the college permit the election to proceed when it appears likely that certain students will face heavy financial losses should they choose to vote? A single vote could cost $600 a year in financial penalties.

What the college needs now is an opinion from the Idaho attorney general on each question to clarify the issues.

Only six working days remain before election day, making it unlikely that intelligent opinions could be issued in time.

Without guidance, the college will blunder blindly into a rushed election, risking the possibility that the election could be ruled invalid later on the basis of either question.

The CSI election has been rushed from the start. The trustees waited too long to set the election date.

Their tight election schedule permitted only one day between the first official publication of election on Nov. 30 and the filing deadline for candidates on Dec. 1.

The college did not have time to find out whether its elector's oaths were valid. At the last minute corrected oaths were printed, eliminating outmoded voter requirements.

Later the college again revised the oaths, following new consultation with the Idaho Attorney General.

Both changes altered voter requirements and trustee candidate requirements. The last change in the oaths occurred shortly before the candidate petition filing deadline.

The question regarding alignment of trustee races is simple, requiring reference only to relevant Idaho law.

But the question of student voting is more complex, tangled in a web of US Supreme Court opinion, interpretations at the state level, and conflicting state legal and constitutional requirements.

The key question is whether residency requirements are the same for voting and tuition.

In the absence of an attorney general's opinion, CSI intends to continue charging out-of-district tuition to those students who move to the district to attend the college, even if the students involved are residents of the district for purposes of voting.

But the outlying counties believe it is nonsense to have separate tuition and voting "residency." The counties intend to stop payment of out-of-district tuition for students who declare they are voting residents of the CSI district.

Students trapped in the middle in the absence of any kind of clear ruling on the matter face outrageous financial penalties for voting.

Such penalties are probably unconstitutional and certainly unconscionable.

Blacks And Home

Reverse migration confirmed. Blacks who'd left the South and moved north seeking opportunity are moving back South and are discovering that's where it's at.

The Wall Street Journal has documented the backhome movement of blacks and has followed some of them.

Harold Jones moved from Chicago to Memphis. He said, "The South is in the beginnings of industrialization. Blacks can get in on the ground floor and move up."

"And," he says, "Living is cheaper."

Josh Conely left his postal service job up North to retire in Greenville, Miss. He says, "I made more money up there but had to spend more on taxes for my doors. My wife was scared even to go to church at night."

Lawrence Wade moved from Chicago to Memphis. He says, "We blacks are a majority in many Southern counties; this is a base on which to build."

Joe Arrington, attorney, after a decade in Syracuse, N. Y., returned to Georgia. He says, "I moved North seeking freedom to discover there is no such thing."

Dan Lane lived in Boston during the Sixties, went to Nashville to attend Vanderbilt. He says, "Up North store clerks, resent having to serve you; down here they say, 'How are you today?' and 'Y'all come back, y'hear'."

John Forte Jr., weary after a day clearing brush for a homestead in Forest, Miss., says, "It's still a lot better than the Los Angeles smog and rat race. It's peaceful here. You can see yourself getting ahead here."

Black communes are fizzling out, but black industry isn't. In Greene County, Ala., where blacks won practically all political offices two years ago, where there was one factory, now there are three — and two more on the way.

On paper this couldn't happen. The Census Bureau says black Americans have made the most gains in education, income and job opportunities. In Northern states; in those regions they now have incomes comparable to whites.

30 percent more than their white counterparts. I can't explain that but that's what the Census Bureau says.

Yet what looks like greener grass north of the fence isn't. And first-generation emigrants always feel "away from home."

And there is another factor the migrants of the Sixties did not anticipate.

A soul brother in a West Side Chicago bar said it simply, eloquently: "We got this neighborhood. We got most of the houses, most of the businesses and most of the political offices. We got no black-white problems any more. But we got black-black trouble like you never saw in Alabama. Soon as I can save our fare, I'm going home."

ART BUCHWALD

Luggage Search

WASHINGTON — Most of the airlines are now searching carry-on luggage in order to thwart hijackings. This is a very commendable practice, but it leads to some embarrassing situations.

In the past you never had to give much thought to what you packed in your hand suitcase. But now that strangers can paw through your personal effects, you have to change your whole style of traveling.

Some people don't care what an airline employee or federal marshal thinks when he zips open your luggage. But I'm not one of them. I get nervous as soon as my flight is announced. For one thing, I get terribly embarrassed about anyone seeing dirty laundry in my bag. I'll stay over at a hotel an extra day and have my laundry done just so I won't be humiliated at the check-in gate.

While this takes up a lot of extra time, several federal marshals have complimented me on the whiteness of my shirts and the neatness of my underwear.

I spent a lot of time thinking about what books to carry in my bags in the past. Before the new anti-hijacking rules went into effect, I would always buy a Mickey Spillane paperback with a sexy cover at the airport. And I was never without a copy of Playboy.

But now I have to think about what books and magazines the marshals would approve of.

I live in deadly fear that some federal marshal is going to find a copy of "Candy" in my personal effects and yell out, "Hey, Harry, we got a poovert on this flight!"

matter in my baggage to the Speech of George Romney and old copies of the Reader's Digest.

I am even nervous about my toilet articles, particularly if a woman is inspecting my baggage. I never know if I'm using the right deodorant or carrying the right after-shave lotion.

Recently I offered a lady marshal who looked like Arlene Francis an antacid tablet and she scornfully produced one of her own which was half as large but contained twice the number of ingredients.

It's amazing how innocent people feel guilty when someone goes through their luggage. This is particularly true of women who have to open up their handbags. It takes my wife two hours to get her handbag just right when she's going on an airplane trip. Then afterward she's never sure if it contained the right things.

If I have any objection to being searched at the airport, it is the impersonal way it's being done.

Usually the marshals search your bag and then wave you through. I think it would add much more zest and fun to it if they would each carry a piece of chalk and grade you on the outside of your bag on your packing. Those who got "A" would be given the first choice of seats. Those who received an "F" would have to repack and take the next plane.

It really galls me when I spend so much time on my hand luggage to get the same treatment as someone who just threw his dirty clothes into the bag as if he didn't give a damn.

MR. SPECTATOR

Hospital Interlude

A change of pace is just the thing Mr. Spectator's change of pace last week called for surgery out at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

We must say the stay was an enjoyable one — because everyone connected with the situation was really swell.

And that goes for the admission people, the gal who took blood, the pink lady who escorted me to the room, the orderly who "prepped" me, all the various nurses involved, the gals who cleaned the room, the gals who delivered what food I could eat, the nurse who at 2 a.m. honored my request for another sleeping pill, the anesthesiologist who dropped in and told me what he was going to use to put me to sleep the next morning, the surgeon who was going to do the cutting but by his talk had me believing there was nothing more to it than walking around the corner for a Coke.

Then, too, there was the feeling of relief that I didn't have to drive on those slippery roads as I could see the snow coming down in gobs as I snuggled up in a hospital room with a view.

But back to the staff members. I remember the enjoyment and the laugh guarded, of course, which came when I asked the nurse who gave me the go-to-sleep shot just before they wheeled me to the operating room "where are you going to stick me with that?" Well, she told me where as I rolled over on my stomach.

Yes, everything out at the hospital was lovely, all the people were swell, and Mr. Spectator is still alive.

But I do have one concern — how are they going to get all those stitches out without hurting? Dr. John McKain put them in — and he's the guy to take them out sometime this week — so I suppose I'd better be nice to him, too. This is a bad time to get a guy angry with you.

AGE UPBEAT

Anyone who wants to surpass the Biblical three-score and ten is advised to take up music — the kind that used to be called "long hair."

A recent issue of Family Circle magazine totted up more than 60 famous conductors, composers and performers of classical music who lived, or are living, far beyond the age of 70.

Leopold Stokowski, for example, celebrated his 90th birthday earlier this year and still practices yoga to keep himself supple.

Celiste Pablo Casals, who didn't quit playing tennis until he was near 80, celebrates his 96th birthday anniversary in December.

Among those who have gone to the big concert hall in the sky, Toscanini was just two months short of 90 when he died. Igor Stravinski was also 89, and Giuseppe Verdi composed his opera "Falstaff" in his 80th year and kept on composing almost up to his death in 1901 at the age of 87.

Finally, while not a classical composer, the late Rudolph Friml, who would have been 93 in December, stood on his head the first thing in the morning ("to get the blood circulating") and bicycled for two hours before breakfast.

Strauss new Demo chief

The vote was 106 and one-half for Strauss, 71 for George Mitchell, the national committee chairman from Maine, and one-quarter vote for Charles Manatt, the party's California state chairman.

The vote represented a comeback for Strauss who appeared to be in trouble after an effort to fire Mrs. Westwood, spearheaded mainly by Strauss supporters, failed on a 105 to 100 vote. But after a recess Mrs. Westwood reappeared before the committee and announced she was stepping down with no conditions attached to her resignation.

She had earlier pledged to quit if Strauss would also drop out and the committee could agree on a chairman aligned neither with the McGovern faction that backed her nor the old regulars behind Strauss.

It was reported that she was persuaded to drop her demand for Strauss to quit the race as a condition of her resignation by committee members who had opposed the ouster but favored an open race for the chairman ship.

Throughout his month-long campaign for the office, Strauss had insisted that he was as committed to the controversial party reforms that gave a larger voice to women, blacks and youths as any other candidate, but his opponents said Strauss' support was founded on anti-reform sentiment.

The scene at the meeting looked like a national convention in miniature with the more than 250 members seated at tables with banners. The back of the room was crowded with newsmen and spectators wearing "observer" badges. The Democratic National Committee charged $5 each for the badges.

During the 25 minutes it took to tally the votes, there was furious floor activity. Ouster forces were able to switch one member to their side while Mrs. Westwood's backers converted two and a half votes from the opposition.

Tanaka favorite

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka is expected to lead Japan's ruling Liberal-Democratic Party to another majority in parliament and up to four more years in power in a general election today.

The LDP has won every general election since Japan regained its post-war independence in 1952. It favors business cooperation with the United States in foreign affairs.

At stake in Sunday's voting will be all 491 seats in the lower house of the Japanese parliament. The Home Ministry said 74.15 million persons will be eligible to cast ballots.

Nixon fills supporting slots

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, in another reshuffling of his administration, reached into the White House staff Saturday to fill the No. 2 slots in the Interior and Transportation Departments.

To serve as undersecretary of interior, he chose John C. Whitaker, who worked on environmental, natural resources, and energy policy matters at the White House. For undersecretary of transportation, he picked Egil (Bud) Krogh, who has served as director of the Cabinet Committee on International Narcotics Control.

As Nixon continued work on the organization of his second administration at his secluded Catoctin mountain hideaway, he also kept in close touch with his national security adviser, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, conducting secret Vietnam peace negotiations in Paris.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon would confer Sunday with Kissinger's deputy, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., who was returning from Paris to report on the status of the talks. The site of the Nixon-Haig meeting was not announced.

Whitaker, 45, and Krogh, 33, both served on the staff of Nixon's Domestic Council headed by John D. Ehrlichman, one of the President's most influential aides.

By naming two White House aides to the important subcabinet posts, Nixon appeared to be preparing a new working arrangement which will call for departmental officials at that

Station attacked

BELFAST (UPI) — Two rockets and several bursts of machinegun fire hit the police station in the border village of Crossmaglen, 50 miles south of Belfast, Saturday, an army spokesman said.

One rocket penetrated the building but damage was light and there were no casualties, he said.

British troops found another Soviet-made RPG7 rocket launcher complete with rocket when they raided a suspected Irish Republican Army (IRA) haven in Belfast.

The previous RPG7 seized by security forces was captured in Londonderry on the day the weapons were first used last week.

American poet Emily Dickinson was born Dec. 10, 1830.

On this day in history:

In 1817, Mississippi was admitted to the Union as the 20th state.

In 1898, Spain signed a treaty officially ending the Spanish-American War. It gave Guam, Puerto Rico and the Philippines to the United States.

In 1941, Japanese troops landed on northern Luzon in the Philippines.

In 1971, the Senate confirmed President Nixon's nomination of William Rehnquist to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A thought for the day: American poet Emily Dickinson said, "Success is counted sweetest by those who never succeed."

Test halts meet

"We asked one small request yesterday but we were turned down," Evans said. "Now today you are accusing us of playing games."
"Now we will play games," Evans said. "We are going to exercise our authority under the rules."

In bringing an end to this organizational session when it did the Senate left in limbo resolutions calling for appointment of a pre-session revenue estimate committee and to set up pre-session budget hearings by the Joint Finance - Appropriations Committee.

Both resolutions were designed to give the first regular session of the 42nd Legislature a head start when it convenes Jan. 8.

Members of both houses engaged in brief oratory in the dying moments about the need for a two-party system in the legislature and the responsibility of lawmakers to their constituents.

Evans especially objected to the GOP's insistence on a 6-3 ratio of Republicans to Democrats on the Senate Finance Committee. He called it unfair that the Republicans have two-thirds control of the committee when they lack that control on the floor.

"The elephants have stamped," Evans said.

He said two-thirds is a large majority with a lot of power. Then he pointed out that one-third also can have power and proceeded to prove it by blocking the movement of orders on the business calendar.

Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewis, summed it up when he put on his coat and left the chamber for home.

The dirty dozen have spoken," Mitchell said.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the finance committee, said the fiscal notes would help the legislature as well as the executive branch of government.

"There is a great desire by the department of budget to have the fiscal notes," High said. "It will be great asset to the executive branch."

"It is time to stop playing games, and stop this foolishness," High said of the Democratic tactics.

Before the two houses called it quits for the three-day organizational session they completed committee assignments and preliminary work on at-large selection for the regular session of the legislature.

The Senate adjourned sine die at 1:22 p.m. And the House quit at 1:43 p.m. after recovering from the initial shock of the senate's sudden action.

Demos hinting

BOISE (UPI) — Senate Minority Leader John Evans, D-Malad, said Saturday he hopes Republican lawmakers think over what they have done during the organizational meeting or the 42nd Legislature "could be quite different."

Evans said the Democrat move to block the passage of a resolution on the floor of the Senate was an indication of what could happen during the regular session when it convenes Jan. 8.

Evans said the finance committee should have been enlarged in order for the Democrats to keep four members. He said the composition of the committee now there are three legislative districts in eastern Idaho which do not have representation on the powerful committee.

"We are going to come back here in January and we will still feel hurt," Evans said. "There will be a time when they (Republicans) are going to need our support."

Idaho nursing plan approved

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education has approved the idea of a unified plan for nursing education at state colleges and universities, but stopped short of implementing the plan.

The board did not recommend that the four year nursing program begin next fall because of the fiscal condition in higher education.

The state board, meeting for two days in Boise, considered a curriculum plan that would open four year nursing programs for Boise State College and Lewis-Clark state college in addition to the four-year program already at Idaho State University.

The other three schools included are the state's two junior colleges and Ricks college at Rexburg.

By developing a unified curriculum approach an Idaho nursing student might get clinical experience at a different campus for a semester depending on what he needs and faculty might teach at several locations.

The result would be a plan for the individual student so he can interlock training between the two and four year program.

The plan was developed by the Idaho Commission for Nursing and Nursing Education.

The board indicated the program at Boise State College would be given priority if funds become available but were less sure for the Lewis-Clark State college at Lewiston.

Payment plan set

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Prison Warden Raymond May has proposed a six-step program to pay his bills after overspending the penitentiary budget by $144,000.

UPI learned Friday that May had gone to budget director D. E. Chilberg to request an increase in his allotment — to take the money from that allocated to the last half of this fiscal year.

Chilberg said he refused that request pending a plan from the board of correction on how they would plan to live with the reduced funds and end the year with a balanced budget.

Johnson feared nuclear war when JFK died

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Lyndon B. Johnson was convinced in 1963 that the assassination of John F. Kennedy might lead to nuclear war, according to former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Warren, in an interview with the Public Broadcasting Service which will be shown on television for the first time Monday, said Johnson cited the possibility of war as one reason the chief justice should head a commission he named to investigate the Kennedy assassination.

Warren recalled that the incident occurred a few days after Kennedy's death in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. Warren said he had advised the dead President's brother, Robert F. Kennedy, he did not believe a chief justice should undertake nonjudicial duties while sitting on the Supreme Court.

Two hours later, he said in the interview, he was invited to the White House by Johnson who told me he felt conditions in the world were so hot at the moment he thought it might even get into a war — even a nuclear war.

The President, according to Warren, cited rumors, later proved to be unfounded, that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and Cuba's Fidel Castro might have been involved in the Kennedy shooting.

Warren also related that Johnson said he had asked for a report from Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara for an estimate on how many Americans would be killed in a Soviet nuclear attack. He said Johnson told him he was given a figure of 60 million.

Warren also said he has never seen any convincing evidence to disprove the Warren Commission's finding that Lee Harvey Oswald was solely responsible for assassinating Kennedy.

Mind Your Money

Q — Why does hamburger meat always have a pretty red layer on the outside with a dark and unappetizing color inside? Are they trying to disguise old meat? — Ms. L.T., Worcester, Mass.

A — It's not disguise. When the meat on the outside first comes in contact with oxygen it turns red or pink. After a while, the outside layer of meat gets more contact with oxygen and slowly turns a dark color similar to the meat inside.

Here's a rule of thumb. If the hamburger is red on the outside, the meat is fresh even though the meat inside is darker. If the meat has already darkened on the outside it means the hamburger is old and has been sitting around for 15 hours or so.

If they used old meat for grinding, it will have a grayish color and you should avoid it.

Q — I was disturbed by your column on low-fat foods for cholesterol diets. You said some margarines, yogurts and all nondairy products were undesirable for a fat-controlled diet.

We feel that one cannot live on skim milk alone. We like cottage cheese but can't find any with one per cent fat.

Why are nondairy creamers permitted on the market if they are just as bad as regular cream for calories? — J.B.S., Citrus Springs, Fla.

A — Let's take your questions one at a time. Some margarines are all right for low fat diets if they're soft and in little tubs.

This means they probably have been exposed to little or no hydrogenation.

Hydrogenated margarines are "hard" and are not recommended for low-cholesterol diets.

According to the Food and Drug Administration, cottage cheese must have less than two per cent fat to be called "low fat."

Nutritionists claim cottage cheese with less than two per cent fat is a good dietary product. You must try dry curd cottage cheese which has an even lower fat content but doesn't taste so good. Adding a small amount of skim milk helps make it more palatable.

As for the many different "nondairy" products, most of them contain coconut oil which is a saturated fat and not good for low-cholesterol diets.

These creamers and other "nondairy" products were not designed for dieters, even though some dieters are fooled by the words "nondairy." They use coconut oil simply because it has a much longer shelf life than cream and doesn't have to be refrigerated.

Q — I'm 67 years old and recently moved to Arizona. When I tried to get automobile insurance the company said I was ineligible unless I bought my home insurance from them as well. Isn't this tie-in gimmick illegal? — H.P.S., Mesa, Ariz.

A — There's no federal law regulating insurance "tie-ins." It depends on your state insurance commission. You can raise the question with your local commission. State police offices usually know the address.

Friend calls hero 'leader'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Dr. Roderick Hilsinger of Temple University, the man credited with saving lives by tossing a grenade out of the aisle of a hijacked Ethiopian jet, was described by friends Friday as a "guy who doesn't run away from problems."

You could say he rushes in where angels fear to tread," said Dr. Norma Furst, a colleague at Temple. "I'm not surprised at all that Rod did something like this."

Hilsinger, 41, described by friends as a rugged, big-framed man whose nose has been broken a few thousand times, "was the product of a broken home who turned from delinquency to teaching disadvantaged children."

He has taught at Temple's College of Education since 1968. He came here after serving as assistant director of the Office of Disadvantaged and Handicapped Children in the U.S. Office of Education in Washington.

He lives in the Mount Airy section of the city with his wife and four children.

He is a New York City native, who spent time in a reform school and was later sent to an institution for children from broken homes in Millbrook, N.Y.

Snowmobiles regulated

HAILEY — The Blaine County commissioners have requested "reiteration" of an ordinance in effect which governs the use of snowmobiles on county roads.

According to the ordinance adopted in February, 1972, snowmobiles may not be operated on public roads unless the roadway is drifted or covered with snow "to such an extent that travel thereon by other motor vehicles is impeded."

However, snowmobiles are allowed to operate "on that portion of the road which is not maintained or utilized for the operation of conventional motor vehicles."

By resolution, the commissioners have allowed snowmobile traffic on four roads within the county. They are Glendale, southwest of Bellevue; Little Wood; Fish Creek, and Priest Lake, near Picabo.

A snowmobile, under the ordinance, must be equipped with at least one headlamp and one tail lamp, which shall be lighted at all times during operation, and must have a suitable braking device, to be operated by either hand or foot.

When operating on a public road, a pole or rod at least six feet high must be attached to the body of the snowmobile.

The ordinance states that a colored or fluorescent flag of at least one and one-half feet by two feet in diameter — in order that the snowmobile may be seen at a distance and over deep snow — be affixed atop the pole.

Towing a person or a sled behind a snowmobile is prohibited unless the sled is specifically designed for towing. Such a sled or trailer must contain runners and be solidly attached to the pulling snowmobile by a steel tongue.

The sled must also be equipped with "sufficient warning lights to give warning of its presence," the ordinance states.

Other provisions include the following:

- Every snowmobile operator must possess a valid Idaho driver's license.
- Every snowmobile must yield right-of-way at all times to every other vehicle.
- When two or more snowmobiles are traveling together, they shall proceed in single file.
- Some of the conditions under which a snowmobile operator will be considered as driving unlawfully include:
 - At a rate of speed greater than reasonable or proper under all existing conditions.
 - Without an adequate muffler or a lighted head and tail light.
 - Operation of a snowmobile in a residential neighborhood in such a manner as to create a disturbance or nuisance.
 - At a speed of over 10 miles per hour.
 - Before 8 a.m. and after 10 p.m.
- The ordinance also establishes penalties for illegal operation on public roads.
 - A fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both, will be imposed for "careless or reckless operation of a snowmobile, or while under the influence of intoxicants or narcotics."
 - When a snowmobile is operated under such conditions and leads to "actual injury to another person or damage to the property of another is inflicted," a fine of not more than $300 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both will be imposed.

A fine, not to exceed $50, was also established for a violation of any other provision of the ordinance.

RUSSIA IN WAR AND PEACE: A REPORTER'S MEMOIR, 1933-1972

Editor's Note: In his 40th year of reporting from the Soviet Union, Henry Shapiro is unique among American newsmen. He has been a "Kremlin watcher" since 1933. He has rubbed elbows with the Soviet people and their leaders throughout the nation. He has met known and sometimes clinked glasses with most of the great men of Soviet history—Stalin, Molotov, Malenkov, Zhukov, Bulganin, Brezhnev, Gromyko, Kosygin, Podgorny. He has been on the scene in Russia through war, peace, setback and triumph. Today he begins the story of the last 40 remarkable years of living Soviet history as he reported it and shared in it.

By HENRY SHAPIRO MOSCOW (UPI)—Four decades are many years in the life of a man. Historically, it might be said four decades are nothing in the life of a nation. But this hectic, racing century has been remarkable for its effect not only on men but on nations. And especially is this true of the Soviet Union whose whole life spans only five decades.

The nearly 40 years I spent almost unbrokenly in Moscow as a reporter have been momentous.

When I arrived in the fall of 1933 Moscow was the headquarters of the world revolution, but little else in a world of great powers. Today it is no longer the monolithic capital of world communism. But it is one of the two greatest powers in the world, with the United States.

In these articles I hope to try to explain how some of it happened, reporting for the first time some things I've not been at liberty to report before, either for reasons of censorship or the sensitivity of world relations.

The phrase "peaceful coexistence" had not yet come into popular parlance when I first saw Moscow in 1933; that was to come many years later in the time of Nikita S. Khrushchev. But coexistence there was so much so that trade between the United States and Russia and personal relations between its citizens were better—even before Franklin D. Roosevelt extended diplomatic recognition in November that year—than they have been ever since.

American capital, know-how, and skilled personnel had done much for the launching of Russia's first five-year plan that ultimately was to convert this backward agrarian country into the great industrial power it now is.

In 1931 Josef Stalin had told his countrymen that Russia had endured humiliating defeats in the past because of its industrial backwardness. If it did not catch up within 10 years, he prophetically warned, the country would be destroyed. This almost happened a decade later when Nazi Germany struck.

English in the early 1930s was as it is now the most popular foreign language in Russia, largely the American variety. There were thousands of American engineers and skilled workers who helped build Russia's first industrial plants—the Gorky autoplane project by Henry Ford, the Kharkov and Stalingrad tractor plants, the Dnepropetrovsk hydro-electric complex, and the Moscow subway.

Some of the Americans came here to look for the jobs they could not find in the then economically depressed America. Others were lured by the high salaries paid, in hard currency, to foreign specialists.

English in early 1930's was most popular foreign language in Russia—particularly US variety

Then there were the left-wingers who had rosy visions of the "brave new world," and came here for political reasons. They were as welcome then as they were to be distrusted later.

For the benefit of the foreign specialists there was an English newspaper—the Moscow Daily News—edited by Michael Borodin, one-time director of a Chicago business school and later the Comintern's (Communist International) adviser to the Chinese Kuomintang.

But in the early and mid-1930s things were looking forward. Most of the Russians I met in those days thought they were riding the wave of the future despite their subnormal living standard.

The American press was strongly represented here by a group varying from eight to 12 correspondents, many of whom made journalistic history. Among them were Walter Duranty, Eugene Lyons, William Henry Chamberlain, Ralph Barnes, Louis Fischer, H.R. Knickerbocker.

My mission to Moscow was not at first journalistic. I came to study and qualify as an expert on Soviet law, a subject little known in the United States, then.

Since my Russian was virtually nonexistent, I immediately undertook the task of mastering the language. That, too, proved simpler than anyone could believe now.

A two-line advertisement in the evening newspaper brought me to a Russian family where no one spoke anything but Russian and they had a room to let. I moved in, and avoided English-speaking contacts whenever possible. Before long I developed a coterie of young Russian friends including Ludmilla, the daughter of a distinguished professor. She eventually became my wife.

Within half a year I had a working knowledge of Russian but by this time the foreign newspaper corps had lured me into its ranks and I entered the exciting world of journalism, there to stay.

I joined the New York Herald Tribune bureau, then Reuter's of London, and in 1937, the United Press with whom I was to spend the rest of my professional career.

Censorship, which Soviet colleagues resented as much as the foreigners, was in full bloom but could be evaded easily if one was willing to risk expulsion. Telephoned and mailed dispatches were probably monitored but not subject to preliminary censorship. Expulsions, however, were rare. The censors were poker-playing, sophisticated, multilingual intellectuals who had lived in the West, and although ardent Communists, enjoyed the company and arguments of their ideological foes.

The gathering of news was also easier then than it was to become. The doors to the press department of the Foreign Ministry were open day and night and other government agencies could be easily reached. It was not uncommon to speak privately with high officials including the witty foreign commissar Maxim M. Litvinov.

Wanting to consult Litvinov on a Soviet foreign policy matter I once telephoned him directly and asked for an appointment. His immediate answer was "come right over" and I then spent four most profitable hours with one of Europe's most brilliant foreign ministers.

Quite a contrast, this, with present conditions when Andrei Gromyko or his deputies never receive a foreign newsmen. Nor did Gromyko's predecessors Dmitry Shpilov, Andrei Vishinskiy and Vyacheslav Molotov.

What also made Moscow more attractive at the time was the relative ease of meeting Soviet intellectuals, although there were difficulties even then. Privately we met Russians, young and old, some very critical of the regime and others Communist enthusiasts. There was a fervor, now lacking, among the young students I met who, although often living on herring and potatoes, cheerfully talked of the bright future promised them in a Communist world.

The ugliness of the day, such as the hundreds of thousands of starved and ragged, homeless children—victims of the ravaged countryside during collectivization—was brushed aside as a passing unpleasantness. Communists were closing their eyes to the present and were living for a promised future of glory.

It was no surprise that when the first American Embassy arrived in the fall of 1933 it soon became a social and cultural diplomatic center. Ambassador William C. Bullitt, a personal friend of Roosevelt's who had been advocating recognition of Soviet Russia since 1917 and resigned from the State Department when Woodrow Wilson outlawed the Soviets, brought along an outstanding staff of Russian-speaking officers. Among them were George F. Kennan and Charles E. Bohlen, both of whom in the later decades played eminent roles in American foreign policy.

At the time America was considered by the mass of Russians as the land of unlimited opportunity, of social democracy and economic dynamism. This view has lingered to this day, through the ups and downs of American-Soviet relations: the enormous reservoir of goodwill towards America built up during World War II did not dry up even in the worst days of the Cold War.

Grow Plants that Smell Nice: There's something special about having fragrant flowers in the home. Here are a few worth growing. No. 1: Fragrant bloomer is the gardenia. Give it a 62-65 degree F. night temperature, and 70 degrees F. by day.

Keep plant uniformly moist to prevent bud drop. Avoid night temperature above 70 degrees. Citrus Fruits: Orange, lemon, gardenia and other members of the citrus family have a wonderful fragrance. They all like a bright window, uniform supply of moisture. Avoid overwatering.

Easter lily has a heavenly smell. Your bulb should be started by now, or you can buy a plant from the florist at Easter time.

Give bright light, ample moisture and cool temperature. Also the Amazon lily (Eucharis grandiflora), has clusters of white, fragrant narcissus-like flowers in late winter or early spring.

It likes a light, sunny to semi-sunny window, plus a cool temperature 55 to 65 degrees F. in fall, up to December.

Hoya or wax plant has fragrant flowers, if you're lucky enough to get it to bloom. Give it less water in winter, ample amount in summer. Needs a loose soil — equal parts of sand, peat and loam.

Exacum is a free-flowering, fragrant plant which deserves a spot in all homes. Likes semi-sunny window, average house temperature and soil mix with equal parts loam, sand and peat.

Another good flowering pot plant is sweet olive, or Osmanthus fragrans, having glossy leaves and clusters of tiny white flowers. Perfume from the blooms will fill a whole room, and some think the aroma is overwhelming.

False holly (Osmanthus variegatus) has leaf margins of white. Grow on cool side, not over 75 degrees F. and give soil mix of equal parts loam, sand and peat moss. Keep evenly moist.

And don't forget hyacinths, daffodils and narcissus for fragrance. They like a lot of moisture, cool, night temperature and not too much sun. Paper white narcissus can be forced easily in plain tap water.

Does any reader have other fragrant flowering plants we can add to our list? Please send them to me. Don't forget we have some wonderful foliage for indoor fragrance. These include geraniums (also called Pelargoniums) and some of foliage smells are rose, apple, pine, orange, lemon, peppermint, apricot, strawberry, ginger, almond and nutmeg.

You can grow marigolds for their odor. And don't forget the whole herb family. Basil, rosemary and thyme are just a few fragrant plants easily grown indoors. You've probably noted that not all house plants have fragrant flowers. If you've ever grown the starfish flower (Stapelia grandiflora), the unpleasant odor nearly gagged you.

The carrion smell is a trick of nature to attract flies in hope of finding decayed meat. The flies walking around insure pollination.

THE DOVE PROBLEM: Recently I lifted a short note from a bird magazine and stated this:

"Every year 70 percent of all doves in North America are eliminated, mostly by bird hunters. This could mean eventual extinction."

Several hunters took us to task for making such a statement, informing us that hunting has practically no effect on biological bird mortality.

They ask: "If it did, why then do all song birds (unhunted species) also have just as high a death rate as doves?"

One writes: "Doves killed by hunters should be referred to as a harvest, not an elimination. We, as hunters, provide through firearms and ammunition excise taxes and license fees more than $130 million a year for the conservation of natural resources and the protection of endangered species."

Over the last 40 years hunters have provided nearly $2.1 billion dollars for this purpose. Another sent a clipping which read: "In 1971, 101 wildlife species were listed as endangered by the office of Fishery and Wildlife."

In only one instance — that of the red wolf — is the plight of a species attributed by the office to hunting."

So, when it comes to pigeons, the Green Thumb eats crow. Our statement was not meant to be an attack on hunters.

KITTY LITTER FOR COMPOSTS: Is it ok to put spent kitty litter on the garden or compost? Yes, if you scatter it around.

One reader writes: "My cats refuse to use the alfalfa based litter which is green. They prefer the granular clay litter. Can I add this material to the compost heap, too?"

Yes, Yes, they are harmless if sprinkled around the garden or compost.

Fireplace Wood: Most of us are content to burn any kind of wood we can get our hands on, but if you have a choice, burn wood that has been piled and air-dried for 6 to 12 months. It's lighter, provides more heat and leaves less ash.

Heavier woods such as hickory, oak, hard maple and beech are best for fireplace. A standard cord of heavy hardwoods is equivalent in heat value to a ton of hard coal, or to 200 gallons of fuel oil.

And don't forget that wood ashes have value in the compost or in the garden. Don't use them around acid loving plants such as azaleas and rhododendrons.

QUESTION BOX

Question of the week: R. F. of Twin Falls: "We want to force some tulips but understand there are what is known as 'pre-cooled' bulbs which do not need the cold treatment. Please tell us what there is to this?"

Pre-cooled bulbs means this: Instead of your having to pot bulbs up and put them in cold storage (or coldframe) for 12 weeks, they have already had this special low temperature treatment done by growers.

So when you get them you can pot them up immediately, and put them in your window or greenhouse and they'll do their thing without that cold treatment.

Forcing time with bulbs varies, but the approximate time is 9 to 10 weeks.

If you're potting up tulip bulbs, keep the flat side next to the pot. Why? Putting the flat side of the bulb next to the pot gives foliage that hangs over the edges, and produces a better looking pot of tulips.

Hyacinths and Narcissus can have their tops one-third out of the soil. Use a loose soil mixture such as one-third each sand, peat and loam. Each bulb is a package with the elements for flowering inside. The soil is used mainly to anchor the bulb in the pot, and to supply moisture.

D. E. of Hansen: "We had some flower and vegetable seeds left over from spring. Can these be used next spring?"

Most flower and vegetable seed will keep a couple of years, although the way you store them makes a difference. Keep leftover seeds in a fairly DRY place.

Best storage temperature is about 40 degrees. If the humidity is low, seeds can stand a temperature of below freezing.

But if they are stored in a damp spot, freezing temperatures will kill the seeds. Put your seeds in a glass jar and store in the attic or an unheated room upstairs.

Next spring, run a germination test just before you plant. Here's how to test your seed: Place seeds between layers of paper towels and see how many sprout. Keep towels moist between two plates at room temperature.

Check daily to see that blotter is moist. Germination (sprouting) of most seeds can be checked in 5 to 7 days, and it should be at least 80 per cent. If you put 100 seeds in the blotting paper or paper towel, and 10 of them sprout, that means 10 percent germination, which is very low.

It's always a good idea not to buy more seeds than you can use in a single growing season, but 9 out of 10 of us always have leftover seed each year.

Brazil got its name from the title given by early Portuguese explorers to a red wood they sent back to Europe.

Water info meet set

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Department of Water Administration has scheduled a public information meeting Tuesday at the College of Southern Idaho.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in room 115 at the Shields Building.

The purpose of the session is to inform the public of the proposed rules and regulations for stream channel alterations and minimum standards for stream channel alterations, according to Bob Haynes, district engineer for the Southern district of the department of water administration.

These rules and minimum standards will set guidelines for applying for permits and will outline construction procedures to be followed to insure that alterations conform to the purpose of the stream channel alteration protection act, 42-350 of the Idaho Code, Haynes said Friday.

Stomach acidity upsets 'astro'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Excessive stomach acidity in a spacesuit is no fun. Astronauts know it. So do their doctors.

It was a blow to space physicians last Spring when Apollo 16 astronaut John W. Young announced from the moon, "I got 'em again."

Young was sitting up there on the moon with gas on his stomach — a whole lot of gas — and raising hell in a mike he thought was dead.

"If they offer to serve me potassium with my breakfast, I'm going to throw up," he said.

With the astronaut's salty epithets broadcast all over the Earth, doctors went to work to find the cause of Young's distress. They decided it wasn't the potassium so much as the way it was being fed to him.

With any kind of luck, their conclusions may give some relief to the moon-bound Apollo 17 crew of Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. Schmitt.

Doctors left the high-potassium — designed to combat fatigue — in the diet of the Apollo 17 crew, but they changed the menu to spread the doses through more foods and make it less noticeable.

Physicians thought they were helping Young's health when they laced the spaceship's orange juice supply with heavy doses of potassium.

It began when doctors noted that Apollo 15 astronaut Dave Scott and Jim Irwin registered irregular heartbeats, a condition called arrhythmia, while strolling the moon. Doctors attributed the irregularity to a deficiency of potassium in the astronauts' diets. The prescription was more potassium in the next spaceship pantry.

They chose to disguise it in the synthetic orange drink favored by astronauts, like feeding aspirin to babies.

CSI students, faculty offer differences . . .

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The days of anonymity at the College of Southern Idaho are over. In the past CSI Board of Trustee elections there have been no more announced candidates than there were openings on the board. However, there were three write-in candidates, one of whom was elected.

At the last board election, 209 votes were cast, out of a potential of 27,000. This year, however, seven candidates have filed for the two open seats on the board.

Interest in the upcoming election on Dec. 19, sparked in part by the candidacy of CSI student Stanley Wachtstetter, appears to be running high, at least at the college itself.

In an effort to gauge opinion on the election and the issues in the election, the Times-News last week conducted a series of interviews with CSI students, faculty members and administrators.

Dr. James L. Taylor, CSI president and a central figure in much of the controversy surrounding the board election, could not be reached for an interview. He was attending the annual meeting of the Northwest Association of Junior Colleges in Portland.

Although "CSI" students sometimes appear more interested in the football games in the Eagle's Nest than in any other campus activity, nearly all students interviewed said they intended to vote in the election.

Those who said they would not were, with one exception, out-of-district students faced with a possible loss of tuition funds if they declared themselves district residents in order to vote.

The out-of-district students were unanimous in saying they would vote if there was no question of tuition loss.

Faculty members and administrators, again with one exception, all intended to vote. The one teacher who was undecided said he didn't think he had enough information the candidates.

Asked if they were familiar with the candidates, many respondents said they were most familiar with the student candidate and knew only about the others what they had read in the Times-News.

John Whistler, a second-year student majoring in agri-business, said, "I've seen their names, I've seen one member is all, around campus. The rest of them don't seem to be board of trustees needs a student to put across the students' views."

Russ Lively, instructor in vocational drafting, agreed. "I think it's a good idea," he said, "because a student is more familiar with the campus. A student is more familiar with it's working, I think, than even some of the trustees may be able to be, because a student is more directly in contact with the school and the faculty

Dr. Paul T. Smith, academic dean, had a different idea. "Well, I've got some fairly strange feelings," he said, "one thing is that we've got a student now on the board of trustees: I think we tend to equate student with somebody under 20 years old, which is not true at a community college."

"We've got people here all the way from 18 up to 60. One of our present board members, Bob Blazstock, has taken probably at least 30 hours of credit with us, which makes him a student, so, essentially, we've got a student on the board of trustees."

Dr. Smith added, "I think qualified individuals should be elected to the board of trustees, and if there is a student who is qualified—sure, why not?"

Nearly everyone interviewed was opposed to students controlling the board. The consensus was that students might well be represented on the board but should not control it.

Students were of this opinion themselves, generally. There were differences. Bill Reeves, a freshman journalism student, was of the opinion that students should control the board.

"They're the ones that are going to college and they're the ones that are benefitting from college, so I think they should have a bigger say in what goes on."

Surprisingly, academic dean Smith was not disturbed by the idea of student control of the board.

"I don't think it makes a lot of difference," he said. "I don't have any strong feelings about it one way or the other. I think you need people on a board of trustees who take a healthy interest in the welfare of the institution, and whether they be students or whether they not be students, well, it's immaterial to me."

Asked to comment on claims by one candidate that the present board of trustees is a "rubber stamp" for CSI president James L. Taylor, interviewees responses ranged from complete agreement to outright indignation. Several chose not to comment at all.

"It's been my experience through two years at CSI that it has been," said Don Hill, a sophomore in philosophy. "They more or less give a blanket approval to whatever suggestion he has."

things that I think the board acted as though they were not fully informed on, or never found out all the details on certain things before making decisions . . ."

"I have taught in different stop to think that without Dr. Taylor there would have been no CSI."

"He's the one, with the help of others, of course, but he's the one who had the idea in the first place and worked very, very hard to bring to fruition what you see right now, and he's still working. He's a very dedicated, brilliant man."

Frank Hull, assistant professor of political science, said he didn't agree at all that the board was a rubber stamp. He thought the candidate was not familiar with the functions of the board.

"The board hires Dr. Taylor to run the college," he said, "and anytime that the board doesn't like the way the college is run, you get rid of this president, you don't get rid of the board, necessarily."

"Dr. Taylor is an instrument of the college and of the board. And yes, Dr. Taylor is a professional in the field and he tells the board his recommendations and they go along with him." Without doubt the most inflammatory issue surfacing as a result of the board of trustees election was the question of tenure for faculty members.

Tenure is not now required under Idaho law for junior college faculty, and CSI faculty contracts are renewed year by year. Faculty members have no guarantee that they will be rehired.

With the current teacher surplus on the job market, they seem to be feeling the pressure, though many do not want to say so directly and others deny it at all.

Students were fairly evenly divided on the matter of tenure. Some felt that it should definitely be given, others thought it should not be given.

The faculty was generally in favor of tenure.

"If this means that we'd have a greater degree of job security,

... indignant

... agrees

Agri-business major John Whistler agreed. "I think it is," he said. "I think the board would go along with anything Dr. Taylor says. I think most of his ideas have been working out pretty smoothly, but I don't like to see any one person dictate to a college like he's been doing."

"The student senate has no control over anything they do without having to go through Dr. Taylor first. They don't feel free to act as a student body. They act as a patsy to Dr. Taylor. I think is what's happening."

Don Puder, assistant professor of biology, also thought the board let itself be too controlled by the school president.

"I think from what I have seen, transpire," said Puder, "that perhaps his (the candidate's) allegation is with some merit, that there are some places and in most cases I think it's a very general thing that boards of trustees do not take the time to be fully informed on . . . I've been a little disgusted with the boards in general, not just with the CSI board, but with boards of trustees, period."

On the other hand, Sadie Perry, CSI switchboard operator, was indignant at the charge that the board was a rubber stamp for Dr. Taylor.

"When I read that statement in the paper, it made me very angry," she said. "I can see how some people would think this. When they speak of a 'rubber stamp' they're saying that the board of trustees goes along with Dr. Taylor just because he's Dr. Taylor. This I disagree with very much."

Dr. Taylor is a very brilliant man, and whoever would make these kind of statements doesn't

Volunteers aid welfare recipients

TWIN FALLS — The secretary in the Buhl office of the Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services is a five-day-a-week volunteer.

The woman in-charge of the Emergency Food Program, Nancy Potter is a volunteer in the Twin Falls regional office.

A group of 28 Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School students is tutoring a smaller group of seven SRS clients' children with learning problems. Under the arrangements, the tutors work only once a month, but each of the students receives tutoring once a week.

These volunteer programs are a part of the volunteer services branch of SRS, a program established, according to various officials, because federal law requires it, because the department's administrator, Dr. John Marks, believes in it, and because in the words of the region V director, "of the unpopularity of welfare and not enough allocation of funds to that department by the legislators."

Whatever the reason, according to Mrs. Linda Medley, director of the programs for the Magic Valley area, there are currently about 50 people engaged in volunteer work.

In addition to the secretarial chores being done in Buhl and the food program and assistance and tutoring in Twin Falls, there is a volunteer program at the Child Development Center in Twin Falls with about 10 people donating one afternoon or morning a week to assist the center's professional staff, according to Mrs. Medley.

A handful of persons is volunteering at the Adult Development Centers, others are assisting with plumbing and electrical repairs on household utilities, and still other volunteers help with filling and other chores in the department's offices.

Some people in the local communities have assisted the senior citizens in Twin Falls, according to Mrs. Medley, and still others volunteer their time and their automobiles to assist with transportation, which is an important ingredient in the tutoring program with the junior high schoolers.

According to an SRS department publication, "The volunteer program will accomplish two major purposes. First it will provide additional help in local offices which are currently swamped with work."

Another desired effect is "it will give volunteers firsthand experience and knowledge about the department's ongoing services to recipients and its long range goals for some volunteers. It may also provide their first contact with the poor of our state, an important and essential contact if the problem is ever to be eliminated."

In addition, according to both Mrs. Medley and Gerry Patterson, a state director for volunteer services, several of the volunteers working to assist SRS recipients are department recipients themselves. And Mrs. Medley said, some of the volunteer jobs can lead directly to paying departmental positions.

The time needed to get jelled foods depends on the size of the container they're in and the temperature of the gel mixture. Most can be unmolded within 3 to 4 hours after they're refrigerated.

Bottle, can deposit measure considered

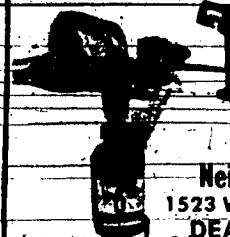

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. John Peavey, R-Tyler, said today he will introduce a bill in the upcoming session of the State Legislature requiring a deposit on returnable beer, ale and carbonated soft drink containers.

Peavey introduced a similar measure during the last session of the legislature, but the bill only received eight votes when it reached the floor of the Senate.

The bill, Peavey said, will be much like the Oregon bottle and can law which went into effect this October. He said from what he has heard the bill is "working well" in the neighboring state.

Enforcement need seen

(Editors: This is the last of several dispatches previewing some of the issues confronting the 42nd Idaho Legislature. Today: Environmental Laws.)

By GEORGE FRANK

BOISE (UPI) — Most legislators in Idaho feel that the state and federal environmental protection laws are adequate, but they see a need for enforcement.

Two-thirds of the lawmakers who replied to a United Press International survey concerning the issues confronting the 42nd Idaho Legislature said they were satisfied with the present laws.

"The present laws seem to be adequate, but pressure must be maintained on polluters to see that they are in compliance," Rep. Ralph Wheeler, R-American Falls, said.

About 15 per cent of those answering the question on environmental laws said they were not satisfied in some cases because the laws did not have provisions for enforcement. The remainder said they needed more time to study the present laws before taking a stand on the issue.

"State and federal regulations are for the most part good," Rep. Larry Jackson, R-Boise, said. "However, it breaks down at the local level, particularly in solid waste management, sewage and water pollution abatement and local land use."

Other lawmakers cautioned against moving too quickly into the area of changing environmental laws placing emphasis on enforcement rather than change.

Sen. Irvy Cobbe, R-Boise, said, "With the present emphasis on environmental control we must move more cautiously and not hastily in the changing of environmental laws."

But Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said she was not satisfied with the laws because a need existed for better enforcement. She said the state had to hire someone "Technically qualified who knows proper testing methods and available technology to combat specific problems."

Rep. Herb Fitz, R-New Meadows, said, "I am definitely not in favor of setting aside more areas for wilderness. I believe we must protect our water and air but also I think we tend toward 'chicken little' scare tactics."

"Our garbage and sewage regulations are our greatest concern and we are moving toward better handling of these," Angus Condie, R-Preston, said. "On other matters I see no panic. We need adequate but not restrictive regulations."

Rep. Lloyd Dunn, R-Georgetown, said the state must continue in the area of environmental protection and keep abreast of environmental requirements, but he added that no emergency exists.

Others felt there were plenty of environmental laws on the books, but the problem was how to enforce them.

Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Post Falls, said, "Let's give industry a chance to demonstrate they can meet present standards for air and water pollution."

But Rep. Edward Rice, R-Boise, had a different answer to the problem.

"Pollution is people," he said. "When people become sufficiently interested they will bring about change."

Roadblock removed for Ketchum-Sun Valley bus

HAILEY — A roadblock to a proposed bus service between Ketchum and Sun Valley was removed after an agreement was reached with protestors Friday.

The agreement — including dropping of a request for a charter service — was struck during an Idaho Public Utilities Commission conducted hearing on the application of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce for a motor common carrier permit.

The two-part application had included a request for permission to conduct a bus service over regular routes within a five-mile radius of Ketchum and for a charter service over irregular routes within a 75-mile radius of Ketchum.

Protestants were Sun Valley Stages Inc., Kirkman Bros. Inc., Boise School Bus Co. Inc. and Northside Bus Co.

After over an hour of testimony by chamber officials, Garth Kirkman, present on behalf of the protestors, received permission to make off the record statements on the matter. A recess issued to permit consultation between James L. Kennedy Jr., attorney for the chamber of commerce, and John R. Coleman, attorney for the protestors.

Under the agreement, the chamber withdrew its request for the charter service in exchange for the protestors' withdrawal of their objections to the applications.

Both parties also stipulated that the remaining request for regular bus service within a five-mile radius of the corner of Third and Main, Ketchum, fell within the Idaho Code pertaining to service within municipalities and contiguous areas.

Under conformance with the code, the services would be removed from IPUC jurisdiction, reducing the purpose of the hearing to a moot point.

However, Commissioner J. Burns Beal said a final decision on the matter would be rendered by Wednesday.

During testimony, chamber manager, Lloyd Curtis, said that the charter service essentially a summer operation — was proposed to offset the winter scheduled routing.

After the meeting chamber president Billie Thompson said the winter operation was still "financially feasible" and was the original intent of the organization.

"Fund-a-Bus" events, such as the one conducted in August, will be scheduled to raise money to cover payments on the two 16-passenger buses and bus fares will be used for drivers' salaries and bus maintenance," she said.

Curtis said, during the hearing, that the proposed service was essentially the same as that operated last year through the Ketchum-Sun Valley Visitors Bureau with routes between Ketchum, Sun Valley and Elkhorn, serving ski lift, restaurants and shopping areas.

Service may be extended through the summer if proved economically possible, Curtis said.

Also present at the meeting was Gary Montgomery, assistant attorney general assigned to the IPUC.

Flames destroy Wendell house

WENDELL — A fire destroyed the one-story frame home of Mrs. Jack Conyers here Friday afternoon.

Fire Chief George Wahler said the blaze was probably caused by an electrical malfunction.

Value of the home and its contents was placed at $9,500.

Mrs. Conyers was in the house and watching television at the time the fire was reported. She escaped from the house without injury, Wahler said.

It was not known whether other members of the family were in the house at the time.

The alarm was reported to the volunteer fire department about 2 p.m., but the fire was not controlled until 8:40 p.m. Firemen battled the blaze in temperatures near the zero mark.

An hour after the fire was controlled, firemen were called back to the scene because the flames had flared up again, Wahler said. It took another hour for the firemen to put out the rekindled blaze.

Wahler said no injuries resulted from the fire.

Governor appoints Wiseman to post

TWIN FALLS — William D. Wiseman was named Friday to fill a vacant seat as Twin Falls County commissioner, the first Democrat in six years to hold that position.

Wiseman was named to the post Friday afternoon by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, following a recommendation made Wednesday night by the county Democratic Central Committee in a closed door meeting.

Wiseman will serve out the 25 months remaining in the unexpired term of Heber Loughmiller, who died

Thanksgiving Day of a heart attack. Loughmiller had been on the commission since 1964.

Andrus, in making official the appointment, praised the local central committee's selection of Wiseman as "a solid choice."

The state's chief executive wished Wiseman well in the new post, saying "the position of county commissioner is a highly important office which cannot be taken lightly."

Wiseman, a 55-year-old Hansen stockman and rancher, has been serving as chairman of the board of the Magic Valley

Memorial Hospital. He will resign his board position to accept appointment to the three-man commission. The post pays $8,400 annually.

Wiseman's appointment comes just prior to the beginning of the commissions budget deliberations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, as well as an anticipated comprehensive land use plan being prepared by Prof. Ross Fogolino to guide land development in the county.

Also in need of consideration is the allocation of $210,000 the county will receive in federal revenue sharing funds.

Ice causes gun wound

RICHFIELD — A slip on the ice Saturday was the cause of a gunshot wound to Greg Davis, 22, employee of Mortgage Insurance Corporation Ranch.

According to Marvin Webb, ranch manager, Davis slipped on the ice at about 1:15 p.m. as he prepared to butcher a beef. A 20 gauge shotgun when he was carrying discharged when Davis fell, shooting him in the chest.

A co-worker, Buzz Peterson, called for the Bergin Ambulance, Shoshone.

He was treated by Dr. R. G. Neher, Shoshone, and taken by the ambulance to St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, where officials reported his condition as satisfactory late Saturday.

According to Lincoln County Sheriff Thomas Conner, Davis was protected from much injury by a down filled hunting vest worn under an army coat.

Ordinarily, Conner said, the 20 gauge would have caused a much more serious wound.

Defendant termed competent

TWIN FALLS — District Judge James M. Cunningham ruled Friday that John S. Dayley is legally sane and competent to stand trial for the armed robbery Sept. 25 at Shelby's in Twin Falls.

Cunningham's decision, which reaffirmed a ruling he had made several days ago, came following a day-long court session in which psychiatrists offered differing testimony about Dayley's mental health, and in which the defendant himself made an apparent confession to the crime.

Dayley told the court he thought he has been drugged with LSD, a hallucinogenic drug, on the evening he is accused of holding up the Shelby's store.

His attorney, Golden Bennett, argued in court that the effect of the drug on the accused, in addition to his regular mental condition, prevented him from being able to "conform his actions to law," the legal test for sanity in Idaho.

But Cunningham ruled the information about LSD immaterial, saying the drug did not constitute a "mental disease or defect," and ordered Dayley to stand trial, set to begin in the next two weeks.

Oratory contest Monday

SHOSHONE — The Fourth District American Legion Oratorical contest will be at 8 p.m. Monday at the Lincoln School Auditorium.

District oratorical chairman Robert Lewin said the winner in the district will then compete against the fifth district winner at a later date this month.

Communities represented in the fourth district include Glens Ferry, Gooding, Hagerman, Mountain Home, Shoshone, Hailey, Jerome, Ketchum, Richfield and Wendell.

Anniversary

BOISE — Saturday, Dec. 9, marked the 100th anniversary of the first time an Idaho legislature ever met.

The First Territorial Legislature convened Dec. 9, 1863, in a frame building at Lawton. It had a House of Representatives of 11 members and a Council of 7 members.

Both houses had long fights over leadership that first day, taking several ballots before picking a Speaker and a President. There were no majority and minority leaders in those days. The Republicans were in the majority in that first session.

Acting Gov. William Daniels, the territorial secretary, delivered the first message to the legislature that day. His first suggestion for action was reappointment — he said the new legislature had not been elected according to population.

The legislators became unpopular when they voted themselves extra expense money over and above the $4.00 per day allowed by Congress. Only three of the 18 were reelected to the Second Legislature.

Cold damages Bellevue truck

BELLEVUE — Inclement weather has resulted in several hundred dollars in damage to the Bellevue fire truck.

According to city watermaster Mitchell Lete, the damage, discovered Thursday, was caused after a furnace in the combination city hall and fire truck garage malfunctioned.

The used truck was purchased earlier this year by the city.

Lete said the outside of one cylinder head had been cracked and frozen water caused a split in the casing on one of the pumps. The head will probably have to be replaced but the casing can possibly be welded, he said.

City employees have begun tearing down the truck to determine further damage and for repairs.

While repairs are being conducted Lete said that the old fire truck, which is not a pumper, has been readied and will adequately serve the city's fire needs.

Inventory phaseout cut affects revenue funds

By DWIGHT JENSEN

Times-News writer
BOISE — Revenue sharing may turn out to be twice a friend to Idaho's smaller counties and communities, the ones that benefit from inventory tax phaseout money above the level they would get if it were based on population.

The Idaho Legislative Council has been studying the bill and has found that if that inventory tax phaseout money were cut off, as some legislators would like it to be, revenue sharing income from the federal government would be cut by a like amount.

So revenue sharing may help beat-down further attacks on the phaseout money.

When the legislature a few years ago decided to abolish the inventory tax, it agreed to replace that money with some sales tax money. Local units of government shared in a portion of sales tax revenue based on a formula that gave an advantage to those local governments that had small populations but large amounts of the type of inventory — such as cattle — that had once been taxed.

Sales tax revenue has now increased so much that local governments are receiving more money from it than they would have received from the inventory tax were it still in existence. Gov. Andrus and a number of legislators have tried from time to time to abolish the sales tax diversion or at least to limit it, but they have not succeeded.

Revenue sharing money depends in part on the effort the state is making to support its local units of government. A reduction in the $4.75 million of sales tax money that goes to city and county governments would result in a dollar for dollar cut in revenue sharing funds.

School districts share in $5.75 million of sales tax money. That could be cut without affecting revenue sharing income, since the schools don't participate in revenue sharing. Nevertheless, some legislators are using the threat of a cutback as a reason for opposing 100 per cent school funding. Specialists who have studied the revenue sharing law say these lawmakers are either misinformed or are looking for excuses.

But there does seem to be little chance of this legislature approving the 100 per cent funding idea. The Times-News talked with several legislators about it during this week's organizing session, and none of those contacted thought that full state funding would pass, although some said there would probably be steps taken in that direction.

BURLEY — Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue Inc. has "rescued" nearly 25 people in more than 10 "searches" during its nine-month existence.

The non-profit organization is composed of more than 100 volunteers from Minidoka and Cassia counties who have pledged to drop whatever they are doing in order to help others during an emergency.

Don Taylor, a Cassia County deputy sheriff and commander of the service unit, said the group's name explains its function — searching for lost, stranded, over-due or injured parties and rescuing parties from areas that are sometimes inaccessible during certain seasons.

Members often must take time off from their work, their families, and their recreation hours in order to use their own horses, jeeps, snowmobiles, boats or other equipment in a search for lost parties.

Their time and expenses usually go unpaid, although the state may on occasion offset their costs with minimum wage payments and 5 cents per mile travel allowances.

The group has appointed officers and a board of directors to coordinate and plan the teams and materials used in search or rescue efforts.

In addition to Taylor, as commander, officers include

Walt Charles, Rupert, vice-commander; Ed Robinson, Burley, secretary, and Rich Madden, Burley, treasurer.

The board of directors includes Jack Funk, Bjoer Porter, Kelly Reynolds, Earl Harrison and Mel Pingel, all Burley, and Arvis Edmundson, Paul.

Incorporated in March, the organization has developed jeep, snowmobile, ski, motorcycle, scuba and sheriff's posse teams. All members are taking phases of law enforcement instruction and will eventually be required to have advanced first aid certification.

The rescuers recently saw someone of the exact area to be action on Nov. 20 when they found four area teen-agers that were stranded at the Bostetter Ranger Station in the Sawtooth National Forest southwest of Oakley.

Gary Nix and his sister Nancy, Oakley; Fred Worman, Burley, and Brenda Phinne, Twin Falls, had hiked to the station after their truck stalled.

The search and rescue team reached the station with four wheel drive vehicles.

Taylor suggested five measures that should be taken by hunters or recreationists before entering a potentially dangerous area.

They include informing entered and the expected time of return; leaving a full description of the vehicle to be used on the trip; instructing someone to call the police or sheriff's office if the return time is not met; briefing someone on the procedures to be used in reporting a missing party (leaving a name, address and phone number with authorities when they are alerted); and asking the alerting sources not to become directly involved in the rescue efforts.

Stan Thomas adjusts camera

New shop opens

TWIN FALLS — Southcentral and southeastern Idaho's only fulltime camera repairman Stan Thomas, has enlarged and moved his business in Twin Falls.

Formerly at 352 Main Ave. S., he has moved Stan's Camera Repair to a new building at 767 2nd Ave. West. He said customers can't miss it. The building is a bright yellow-green, trimmed in white.

Thomas started in the camera repair business about 10 years ago, with a home schooling course from National Camera, Inc. He said he finished the three-year course in about a year and a half.

After the schooling he served as an apprentice in Spokane for two years. Later he worked as repairman for the Camera Center, Twin Falls, for four and a half years. He has been in business for himself for about four years.

He said in order to better serve his customers he has attended seminars covering Nikon, Honeywell, G.A.F., Graflex, Minolta, and Bolex cameras. He said he can fix about 90 per cent of all photo equipment made.

Three and a half years ago he designed a camera stock to be used with long telephoto lenses on cameras. He designed it because as a photographer, he needed some device to hold the camera steady while shooting wildlife photos.

He later earned a Mechanix Illustrated Gold Hammer for the camera stock. Thomas plans to hire a fulltime employee to make the stocks. He has provided a special workroom for manufacturing the stocks in his new building.

He also hopes to expand his camera repair service with one more repairman in the future. Thomas now services cameras for dealers in Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and California.

The new building itself was built almost completely by Thomas and his father, Dick. The building is atmospheric, fully controlled, with a system to heat, clean and dehumidify the air. Thomas said this complete control is necessary to keep a camera's small parts clean and dry.

Thomas is a factory authorized dealer for a number of cameras out of warranty. He does give a factory length warranty for his work.

Thomas will make a free routine check of a camera for a customer. This check includes tests for light meter accuracy, shutter speeds, diaphragm operation and flash operation. He can detect most major problems with this service check.

A preventive maintenance check on all cameras is recommended by Thomas to keep them functioning properly.

TF firm delivers poultry

TWIN FALLS — A new poultry distribution firm has opened in Twin Falls and is now delivering throughout Magic Valley.

Robert D. Woodbury, owner of Woody's Poultry Distributing Co., said he now handles about 20,000 pounds per week and hopes to double this by next year.

Woodbury said he is shipping dressed poultry into Twin Falls from Arkansas and distributing it to retail stores, nursing homes, hospitals and restaurants.

His trucks operate between Twin Falls and Glenns Ferry, Sun Valley, Wendell and Gooding, Rupert, Burley, Hagerman, Buhl, Kimberly, Hansen and will soon be making deliveries as far as the Nevada state line to the south.

Woodbury said nearly all poultry firms are importing their dressed chickens and turkeys from Arkansas because it is cheaper to ship them in than raise them in Idaho at the current cost of feed in this area.

At the present time Woodbury is handling the business operation from his home and is using the Twin Falls Feed and Ice facilities for storage of the frozen or fresh chickens.

Deliveries are made by refrigerated truck in the outlying areas and by regular trucks in the immediate area.

Woodbury, a native of Pocatello, has lived in Twin Falls the past six years. He was formerly employed at Seven-Up Bottling Co.

The authority is limited to providing transportation under an existing contract with the school district, the PUC order said.

TF extension programs outlined

TWIN FALLS — William Loughmiller, Hollister, was elected chairman of the Twin Falls County Extension Advisory Council Thursday at its annual meeting.

Loughmiller succeeds Ralph Baughman, Buhl, at the post.

Other officers elected were Duane Ramseyer, Filer, chairman, and Mrs. Frank Southwick, Buhl, who was re-elected secretary.

The advisory council is composed of about 40 members representing all agricultural commodities, the 4-H council, the homemaker's council and other persons working in agriculture.

The council meets one or more times each year with the Twin Falls County extension staff and the county commissioners.

In the meeting Thursday Patricia Maughan, extension home economist, gave a rundown on the family living program in Twin Falls County to the members.

"I would like to help families in Twin Falls County plan to meet changes in family living in the future," she said.

She said this planning is necessary because of the climate of rapid change in our nation's style of living. The change is inevitable with higher incomes, she said, and the extension service can either go along or help direct the homemaker.

Mrs. Maughan said today's homemaker needs more knowledge of consumerism to help spend her money efficiently. The home economist said in the future persons applying for low income housing will probably have to take homemaking courses from extension home economists to qualify for the housing.

Presently Mrs. Maughan is working on projects of "do ahead" meals, flower arranging, better food and nutritional meals for homemakers, and generally how to provide pleasing surroundings in the home.

Lillian Dougherty, who is in charge of the extension extended nutrition program, outlined the program for advisory council members.

She said the program is financed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and administered by the University of Idaho Extension Service.

The purpose of the program is for ENP aids, who are trained by Mrs. Dougherty and other extension personnel, to go into the low income home and teach homemakers how to feed their families efficiently.

Presently there are eight such aids working in Twin Falls County under her direction.

Mrs. Dougherty emphasized the fact that the families are not given food or money, but an education.

She said the program also works with lower grades in the county's schools. It started in grades one and two and may progress to higher grades in the future.

"Good nutrition is our main goal," she said, "but sometimes lessons in sanitation must be given before nutrition can be taught."

ENP aides have worked with over 1,000 families since the program went into effect about two years ago.

In 1972 there were over 800 4-H members in the county doing over 1,600 projects, according to Richard Fuehrer, extension 4-H leader. Fuehrer gave the group a rundown of the broad view of the 4-H activities and projects this past year.

Don Youtz, Twin Falls County agricultural agent, listed his activities for the council to give it a better understanding of his function in the extension service.

His main area of work includes public relations through the media, mailings to special interest groups community planning, public meetings, — ENP, — home economics, 4-H, special programs such as grasshopper spraying and the every day paperwork.

An example of the extension services' involvement in unplanned programs was given to the council by Dick Harder, secretary-treasurer of the Grasshopper Control Committee.

The 10 member committee was formed early in 1972 after the USDA determined Salmon Falls Tract farmers might have a giant problem with grasshoppers.

It was coordinated by Youtz and Roger Pollard, USDA Agricultural Research Service. The committee contacted persons on the Salmon Falls Tract and collected money for the spraying of grasshoppers.

Harder said 50,000 acres of public land and 25,000 acres of private land were originally proposed for spraying. He said the estimated cost to the landowners would be 90 cents for cropland and $30 for rangeland they owned.

Over $16,000 was collected from landowners for the spraying and the job was contracted to Harder Flying Service, Harder said.

Because the committee was the first to submit their money to the USDA the Salmon Falls tract was the first area to be sprayed in the state. It was sprayed from July 5 through July 12.

Harder said because of honey bee populations, spraying on 1,620 acres of private land had to be canceled. Over $1,100 was refunded to 11 different land owners.

This land could not be sprayed because the chemical used to kill grasshoppers also killed bees efficiently.

One plus the committee didn't plan on was the cost. It overestimated the cost of spraying by some 40 per cent. The final cost ran 54.4 cents per acre for cropland and only 18 cents for private rangeland for a total cost of $9,344.

Harder said a refund of $7,230 was made to 74 farmers and landowners on the tract.

Breaking down cost proportions, on private rangeland, one third of costs were paid by the state, one third by federal government and one third by landowners. Landowners paid all spraying costs on private cropland. Public rangeland was sprayed and paid for by state and federal funds.

Browns end Bengal title hope

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Don Cockroft booted a 27-yard field goal with 4:18 to play and linebacker Ken Anderson made a game-saving interception Saturday to preserve a 27-24 victory for the Cleveland Browns over the Cincinnati Bengals and eliminate Cincinnati from contention for a "wild card" berth in the NFL playoffs.

Quarterback Mike Phipps shrugged off a first half injury and returned to the game to engineer the Browns to their ninth victory in 12 games and maintain Cleveland's midway over the Paul Brown-coached Bengals with five wins in their six-game series. Cleveland thus kept its hopes alive for a playoff berth as a "wild card" entry.

Phipps fired touchdown passes of 50 yards to Frank Piles and 20 yards to Paul Hooker, completing 10 of 24 aerials for a net total of 141 yards. But the Browns needed the goal-line interception by Andrews with 27 seconds to play to save them from a possible defeat. The Cleveland linebacker jumped high to pick off Virgil Carter's eight-yard pass as the Bengals were driving for the go-ahead touchdown.

Carter, pressed into service when starting quarterback Ken Anderson suffered bruised ribs in the second quarter, brought the Bengals back from a 14-0 deficit to go ahead briefly in the third quarter at 17-14 after trailing 14-10 at the half.

Carter, whose entry into the game was greeted by loud cheers, ran eight yards for Cincinnati's first touchdown, clinching a 75-yard march. The Bengals narrowed Cleveland's lead to 14-10 on a 31-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann with 15 seconds left in the first half after Ken Riley had swiped a pass by Cleveland's Bill Nelsen.

Dallas downs 'Skins, grabs 7th trip to playoffs in row

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Craig Morton, doing his Roger Staubach imitation, scrambled to throw one touchdown pass and ran 14 yards for another Saturday while Calvin Hill surpassed the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season and Dallas' defense held off a last half Washington blitz to whip the Redskins, 34-24.

The victory boosted Dallas into the post-season playoffs for a record seventh straight season.

It was only the second loss of the season for the Redskins, who played all day without the services of the National Football League's leading rusher, Larry Brown.

Dallas rushed to a 28-3 halftime lead on the heroics of Morton, Hill and Walt Garrison, but had to withstand a Washington surge in the second half that saw quarterback Bill Kilmer throw three touchdown passes.

The game was not wrapped up until Toni Fritsch kicked a 26-yard field goal with 3:25 to go in the game. That score was set up by Charlie Waters' interception of a Kilmer pass.

Hill, who became the first Cowboy ever to go over the 1,000-yard mark in a single season by rushing for 111 yards on 24 carries Saturday, opened the day by scoring on a 10-yard run and then caught a 26-yard touchdown pass from Morton.

Morton broke a tackle on that play to roll out just like Staubach enjoys doing to find Hill in the open.

Garrison, who rushed for 121 yards himself, then scored on a 25-yard bolt up the middle and Morton finished out the first half by scrambling into the end zone on a 14-yard run.

E. Texas State has NAIA championship

COMMERCE, Tex. (UPI) — Tailback Kenneth Parks rushed for 165 yards and scored the winning touchdown Saturday as East Texas State beat Carson-Newman 21-18 and won its first National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) championship.

Parks, a 5-9, 192-pound senior from Winston-Salem, N.C., carried 49 times to set an NAIA championship mark. He carried the ball 32 times in the second half and on one drive was called on nine straight times. He was named the game's most valuable back.

Parks carried the ball three straight times to score East Texas' winning touchdown from the 15 yard line in the fourth quarter. The score was set up when Ricky Earle recovered a fumble at the Carson-Newman 29.

East Texas' first score came on a three-yard run by Nelson Robinson. That score was set up by a fumble recovery by Harvey Martin at the Carson-Newman nine yard line. It was one of nine Eagle mistakes of the afternoon — five fumbles and four interceptions.

The Lions scored again shortly after another Carson-Newman fumble. The 69-yard drive took 15 plays with Parks carrying 10 times, nine in a row, for 45 yards. Quarterback Will Cureton ran from the one for the score.

Tennessee State rips Drake 29-7

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UPI) — Tennessee State's Larry Dorsey ran a punt return 82 yards for one touchdown and Michael Hagmen scampered 40 yards with an intercepted pass for another Saturday to carry the Tigers to their fourth straight bowl victory, a 29-7 win over Drake in the Pioneer Bowl.

The Tigers also scored on a 45-yard touchdown pass from Kenneth Pettiford to John Holland, a 37-yard run by Fred Lane and a 31-yard field goal by Alfred Reese, who also converted extra points after the last two touchdowns.

Drake's only score came on a two-yard run by tailback Jerry Houston in the third period.

Four minutes later Hagmen picked off a Dennis Redmon pass on the Drake 40 and scored to give Tennessee State a 12-0 advantage.

Capital punctures Twin Falls

Wayne Tingsdale hit two clutch shots and Gary Bastian two pressure free throws Saturday night to lift the Capital Eagles past the Twin Falls Bruins 56-54 in overtime.

The defeat was the first of the year after three wins for Twin Falls but also held up a tradition — a haunting one. A wire service had named the Bruins No. 1 in the state early in the week. It was the fourth time over the years. True to history, Twin Falls did not survive the following weekend.

The Bruins, despite a cold third quarter when they scored only four points, still had the ball game won going into the final two minutes — ahead 50-46. But two straight one and one free throw misses, two bad passes and two missed field goals — one an all alone cripple — sent them down. In addition, Capital proved considerably quicker than the Bruins and the Eagles scooped up most of the loose balls.

The Bruins opened hot, hitting four straight but Capital remained tied. Late in the period Bob Durham hit seven straight points, Eric Hovey and Charles Brown added a field goal each for the biggest lead of the night at 19. Capital, with Loren Johnson working the boards and inside well, came back and by halftime cut the deficit to three.

Both teams were cold in the third period with Capital taking the lead by scoring only eight points. The teams traded the lead until Hovey hit a three-point play to send Twin Falls up by two. Bruce Dayton then tied it before Hovey and Haynes got two points each for the 50-46 margin. The Bruins wore out 1:37 in a slowdown again, but that ended in the missed cripple. Still Twin Falls held the lead until the two turnovers on bad passes let Tingsdale and Larry Johnson get the tying points.

In overtime, Dayton opened scoring but Brown nullified it. Then Tingsdale hit from the deep corner. Twin Falls had a shot taken away due to a foul away from play with nine seconds left and the Bruins had to foul. Bastian drilled both to ice it.

Friday night Twin Falls trimmed Meridian 69-41 in a game marred by at least 50 turnovers on both sides.

Although the Bruins never trailed, they were in trouble throughout the first half as free throws kept them on top. Meridian was whistled down 27 times and Twin Falls, scoring only seven more field goals, picked up 23 free points. The Bruins, however, missed 13.

Both teams shot poorly with the score tied 8-8 with 1:57 left in the first period. Early in the second quarter Bob Durham and Eric Hovey hoisted Twin Falls ahead by 17-10 but Meridian closed that to one point and Kim Helsen then steadied the Bruins with four points. Two buckets by Hovey and a Jim Last free throw opened it to 10 again but Meridian was back to within seven at intermission.

Twin Falls blew it open in the third quarter although scoring only 12 points. Durham hit his first three shots and Hovey and Brown would up all the points for the period for a 45-30 advantage. Early in the last period Nielsen and Brown hit and Hovey then connected on six straight points to establish a 21-point bulge.

Utah rallied past Utah Logan, Utah (UPI) — Robert Lauriski dropped in points, 22 in the second half to shoot Utah State back from a 10-point halftime deficit for a 78-67 win over downstate rival Utah Saturday night.

Lauriski combined his career high 32 points with 21 from Jim Boatwright to tie the Utes 63-63 with 3:28 left in the game. The Aggies then scored 11 straight points to race away from Utah.

Utah built up a 39-29 halftime lead behind the shooting of freshman guard Luther Burden who had 14 points in the first 20 minutes and 23 in the game, high for the visiting Utes.

The Aggies hit only 38 per cent from the field in the first half but improved their shooting to 60 per cent in the second 20 minutes as they blazed past the cold shooting Utes. Utah managed only 39 per cent from the field in the game.

SHOSHONE — The Filer Wildcats, behind the scoring of Jones and Doug Lincoln, ended Shoshone's undefeated boast 40-40 Saturday night.

The Wildcats opened strong and quickly pulled into a 13-1 lead. Shoshone tried to come back and four or five times in the final half narrowed the deficit to four points. But Filer never let them closer.

Shoshone won the preliminary 67-55.

Minico opens SIC defense on 2 wins

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans, using a double platoon system, thumped Meridian's Warriors 62-45 Friday night to open defense of their Southern Idaho Conference basketball crown.

Coach Gary Swan sent nearly a whole new alignment on the floor to open the game and they took the lead — but only by four points. Meridian stayed in fairly well through the second period, trailing only by five.

But immediately after halftime the Spartans grabbed control and quickly blazed away.

Craig Hepworth, playing less than half the game, came up with 17 points and led the Spartans in rebounding.

ball against the Capital zone, which the Eagles refused to leave, and took only the good shots. At the same time, the Spartans hammered Capital on the other end of the floor. Against the press Capital managed only four field goal attempts in the third quarter and during that span Minico outscored them 15-5 to turn it into a run away.

Idaho bows to Sacramento and San Jose

MOSCOW (UPI) — San Jose State's tight zone defense and the outside shooting of guard Dave Dockery carried the Spartans over the Idaho Vandals 75-53 Saturday night.

Dockery hit most of his points on outside jumpers as the visiting Spartans went to him early in the game to build up a 43-36 halftime lead.

Idaho turned on an aggressive defense in the second half after the Vandals fell behind 59-43 and closed back to 62-53 with 10 minutes left in the game.

But the Vandals got into foul trouble late in the game and San Jose State coasted through the final minutes for the win. The Spartans controlled the backboards, pulling down 52 rebounds to 41 for Idaho.

Doug Adkins was second in scoring for the Spartans with 13 points and he had five assists. Ty Fitzpatrick led Idaho scorers with 18 and Frank Munos added 12.

Sacramento State's Hornets shot an impressive 51 per cent from the field and used a tight defense to beat Idaho 77-63 Friday night.

WAKE FOREST N.C. (UPI) — Chuck Mills, who has created explosive offenses and winning teams at Utah State, was given the job Saturday of rebuilding Wake Forest University's football team.

Mills was picked by the Atlantic Coast Conference school to be its second head coach in less than a year, succeeding Tom Harper who had a 2-9 record in his only season.

Deacons hire Utag's Mills

Chuck Mills possesses "Hooks" The only other candidate interviewed by the university screening committee was Augie Tammariello, a former Wake Forest assistant who is now an assistant at Colorado University.

In initial discussions, the screening committee wanted a mature man with head coaching experience who was obviously motivated," said Hooks.

Burley high school, faced with a problem of scheduling football games, has made written application for membership in the Southern Idaho Conference.

This means three eastern Idaho teams, Bonneville, Blackfoot and Burley will make their pitch at the SIC spring meeting, held in conjunction with the state A-1 basketball tournament in Pocatello.

But it also means that the first general consensus will be picked up here Monday when SIC football coaches meet to finalize their 1973 football schedule.

At the present time, the coaches are working on a three-year plan whereby the divisions will meet equally over that period of time.

The applications from the three B's, if accepted, would have no effect on the 1973-74 school year. The SIC established the policy of one year's abeyance on participation following formal approval of membership.

The possibilities of the three B's grow nearly to the point of mind-boggling. Three new eastern teams would send Twin Falls west with an imbalance of eight-seven on the east.

Scheduling would have to be over a longer period of time to get the home-and-home (i.e. transportation costs) equalized over the long haul.

It also leaves A-1 teams like Madison and Rigby sitting on the east with the likelihood developing that smaller schools eventually will stop scheduling them in football.

On the west, Boise has postponed its plans for a fourth high school indefinitely and we understand that none of the A-2 schools is particularly crowding the A-1 classification enrollment mark.

In addition, the Boise area has sufficient A-2 schools to obtain a pretty good schedule augmenting those by looking toward Baker and Ontario, Ore., and Buhl, Gooding, Jerome, etc.

Therefore, the only possibility that jumps to mind is the continued growth of Jerome, projected to be in the A-1 enrollment range in another two to four years. But the imbalance is still there.

The other thing is our previous statement that the SIC, controlling the major stadium, news media, enrollments, etc., is not dependent on anything for survival. It also provides the total financial (it and other A-1 schools) burden of the other 114 high schools in the state.

The upshot of total growth as it appears now would make the alignment all powerful.

For the most part, however, the larger schools, particularly in the west, want to stay within the framework of the Idaho Interscholastic Activities Association. If that feeling prevails on through, the likeliest solution must be dissolution of the SIC by its members who then would form their own separate geographical situation entities.

A couple of notes: Fred Trenkle, former CSI basketball and now head coach of Wood River, found an interesting statistic in the Converse basketball yearbook.

It indicated that CSI ranks third out of over 400 junior colleges nationally in attendance. Hutchinson, the home of the NJCAA and whose fans wear more red than Santa Claus, leads with 84,000. However, in Hutch a family can get a $20 ticket to the big fieldhouse that entitles them to all junior college and high school games. Gets the price down to about 10 cents per family member and makes it easily the biggest recreation value in JC athletics.

Tyler, Texas, another perennial national JC power, was accorded 45,000. CSI had 32,000 while seven-time national champion — and defending champion this year — Vincennes, Ind., was fourth at 22,000.

"Somewhat of a tribute to the fans in this area," comments Coach Trenkle. However, we defer to the degree that the individuals and caliber of ball being played at CSI earns more attendance than they've been getting.

The pro golfers have just released their money list for the season. Jack Nicklaus, who earned the ridiculous figure of $62 per shot, was the winner, of course, with over $300,000. Back around 52nd was Babe Hickey who wound up with $49,489. Not a bad salary for the Twin Falls native and Poky high graduate.

"Vic Kelly" didn't start Thursday night for USC in that upset by Arizona. But the ex-CSI star had his best scoring night with 10 after coming off the bench.

Hagerman defeats Rimrock

RIMROCK — Hagerman led throughout the game to defeat Rimrock 57-45 Saturday night.

Hagerman led 9-8 at the end of the first quarter and 26-21 at the half. In the third quarter Hagerman built a 19 point lead and coasted to the victory.

Rimrock's Smith led all scorers with 19 points and Allen was the top scorer for Hagerman with 13 points.

Hagerman beat Rimrock 68-52 in the preliminary game.

traditionally tough opponents, Utah State, in Twin Falls Wednesday night, weren't able to count the victory in the bag until the final three minutes.

That was largely due to the outside shooting of Steve Weist, who hit 26 points, and Jim Fields, who added 21.

CSI never led by more than 11 points, the last time at 72-61 with three minutes left.

Throughout the first half the Vandababes (they played only freshmen) were, almost dead even, the Eagles taking the edge on Ron Fryson's three-point play just before the buzzer.

But in the second half Vince Volmut and Willie Williams started giving the Eagles a better share of the rebounds and they led throughout.

Steve Swanson's early scoring helped the Eagles into a 19-14 lead but after Weist, who was hitting howitzers, scored CSI wasn't up by that much again.

Idaho tied it at 33-33 with 1:10 left.

The Eagles' three-point intermission lead melted to one when Weist got the first bucket of the second half, but Rick Sobers and Fryson got CSI back up by five.

The first CSI move came with 14:09 left when Swanson and Williams hit twice and Fryson once while Idaho could manage only a Weist field goal.

That bombed the Eagles ahead by 10.

Idaho came back to within five points almost immediately with Fields doing the damage.

With 5:05 left in the game, Fryson, Sobers and Williams opened up the 11-point lead and CSI then went to the free throw line to stay ahead.

Devils nip Mushers in final minutes

FAIRFIELD — The Murtaugh Red Devils capped a game-long comeback in the closing three minutes Friday night to avenge an earlier loss to Camas County 52-48.

The Mushers ran their patterns well in the first period and built up a 13-4 advantage.

Murtaugh then replied with a press that didn't result in many turnovers but took the pattern game away.

Still the Devils stayed behind until with three minutes remaining when they tied it 46-46.

The Devils hit the next four points to clinch it.

Camas County won the preliminary.

Jerome making its best showing of the season, gave the Bobcats fits on the backboards although giving up a considerable height advantage.

But the Bobcats stormed away early and it proved too much for the Tigers to overcome.

Burley went ahead 18-6 in the first period when the Tigers hit only 10 per cent from the field.

But Jerome warmed up in the second period and cut the margin to seven points by intermission.

The teams played evenly through the third period before Jerome made another push in the fourth.

The Tigers drew to within two points with 4:40 remaining in the game.

Burley then went to the line for the free throws that pushed them safely away again.

The Bobcats scored only two field goals in the final period.

L. M. Boyd

If you're one of those who enjoys leaping out of bed at daybreak, chances are you'll reach your energy peak about 10 a.m. That's when the larks are expected to do their best work. But if you're one of us who invariably regrets the daylight, it's likely you won't hit your liveliest production stride until about 2 p.m. Owls do better in the afternoon. The senatars who study sleep habits report this.

PISTOIA IS a little town in Italy. A curved dagger used to be made there. It was called a pistoiese. Later, a curved hand gun was made there, too. It was called a pistolet. About A.D. 1540 was when that got started. It's where we come by the word pistol.

YOUNGLADY, do you invariably kiss on the first date? When pollsters asked 3,000 coeds that, exactly 32 per cent said yes. When they put the query to a like number of college men, just 42 per cent said yes.

MONEY MATTERS

If you keep your new car for 10 years, it will cost you four times the original investment, the experts say. PROPERTY owners pay eight times as much tax as they paid in 1939, and local governments spend 13 times as much money. YOT-LL SAVE just about 3 per cent on your heating costs for each degree you lower the thermostat.

TAKE ANY 1,000 women. Approximately 46 of them will have undergone surgery. As for any 1,000 men, about 38 will have had operations.

STATISTICALLY, it's said the average U. S. citizen carries on about 745 telephone conversations per year. Little better than two a day.

SURVEY TAKERS have been in operation long enough now that they know for a fact one out of every 20 citizens will flat out refuse to answer their queries.

BABIES

Which is the better for an infant, to wrap it securely in its receiving blanket before putting it down to sleep? Or to cover it loosely so it can kick freely? Debate over this is extensive. Russian mothers keep their offspring swaddled like mummies. They know that's right. American mothers insist their youngsters be uncumbered. They know that's right.

FOR REASONS incompletely explained, men who suffer from that ailment known as the peptic ulcer tend to be long-shot gamblers. At the tables. At the tracks. And in business. Or research. In the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., indicates such, at any rate.

PRICE OF BRIDES in the rural Middle East has jumped from about $1,000 to $2,000 in the last two years. That's no small cost, either. Represents about five years of a working man's income there.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES A Sunday to be sure you live the Golden Rule and establish harmony with those you are with instead of yielding to a planetary urge to argue and dispute. Engaging in wholesome studies as well as attending services lessens the likelihood of accidents or problems with others now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you listen to what friends have to suggest and also know your own aims, this happy combination will result in fine benefits. Show more regard for others and you more in return. Take it easy in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Hickeys and associates you confer with today do not seem to agree where ideas are concerned for your advancement, so listen to both then make own plans. Take no risks. Get to bed early so you get an early start in the morning.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You first have to finish chores facing you and then you can put through those fascinating ideas your mind is developing. Some new friend can help you get out of that convenient but dull rut you have fallen into.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Why worry about what cannot be helped? Get out with interesting and fascinating people and have some talks about improving the future. One you admire has fine ideas. Try to listen carefully and put in action.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A family tie and an associate do not see eye to eye, so do not bring them together and all works out well. Others resent your forceful attitude, so tone it down and you benefit. Be your romantic self in p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to follow more orthodox methods and principles instead of doing just the opposite and getting yourself into hot water. Attend the services of your choice. Join some good friend at tavern amusements later in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Why don't you forget practical matters now and get into amusements that will renew your vigor? You will be able to have new and creative ideas thereby, also. Stop getting so excited about something until you know all the facts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Forget all that arguing with kin and do something of a constructive nature that will help you get ahead faster. Don't forget to attend services, though. There is more power in prayer than you realize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Stop worrying about something you can do nothing about and get busy with ideas you have for improving your lot in life. You have a clever friend who can show you how to become a happier person. Listen carefully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Although financial affairs have you very worried, if you get together with progressive friends, they can give you good advice ideas for improving your position. Become more interested in the social side of life. Be happier.

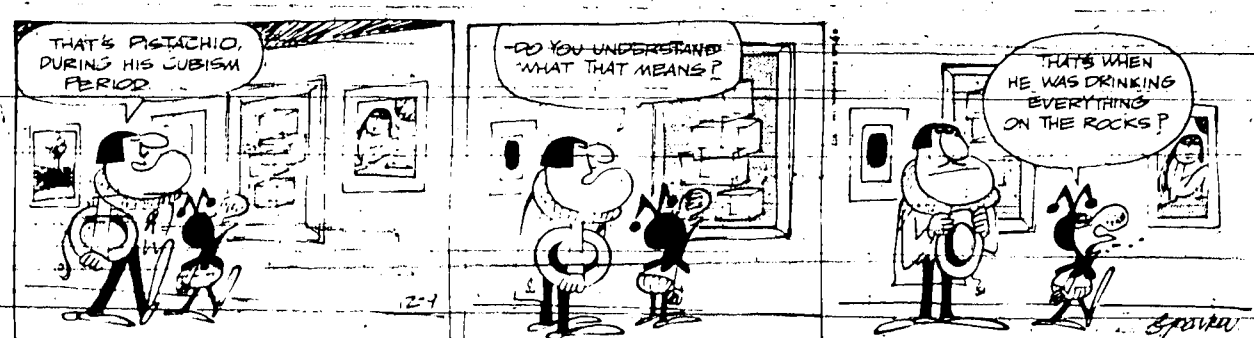

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Give up the personal aims you have and put your mind to solving the business matters which could cause trouble right now. Avoid an intimate person who is not in a good mood. Test if you love your favorite hobby tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) There are fine stars running through your mind so do something about them that is practical instead of being a parasite of yourself. You can expand along very rich ideas. Listen to what mate has to suggest, also.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who must be taught early to correlate personal and financial aims. Otherwise one of the other could suffer and the fine promise here would be lost. Give high spiritual training early so that the ideas become lofty and in tune with the ever of all that is good. Any profession entered into will then become successful.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your fate is largely up to YOU.

Kleindienst completes new cabinet

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon formally completed his second term Cabinet Friday by announcing that Richard G. Kleindienst would remain as attorney general.

But this was coupled with announcement that five other top Justice Department officials will be replaced as part of Nixon's reshuffling of the administration.

These are:
Deputy Attorney General

Ralph E. Erickson; David Luke Norman, assistant attorney general in charge of the civil rights division; Jerris Leonard, administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration; Roger C. Crampton, assistant attorney general in charge of the Office of Legal Counsel; and Leo M. Pellerzi, assistant attorney general for administration.

At the same time, the White House said Yale law professor Robert H. Bork, one of the drafters of the administration's antibusing legislation, will be a new face in the Justice Department.

Bork will become solicitor general next spring at the end of the current term of the Supreme Court, replacing Erwin N. Griswold who plans to retire.

There have been reports that Kleindienst, who was confirmed by the Senate as head of the Justice Department only after lengthy confirmation hearings, will not remain long in the second Nixon term starting Jan. 20.

The hearings were spiced by charges involving Kleindienst's alleged role in the settling of an antitrust suit against International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. Democrats charged the settlement was in exchange for political contributions.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced the appointments. Asked if Kleindienst would be replaced soon, he replied: "The attorney general will be staying as attorney general in the second term."

Ziegler said replacements for the other five Justice officials would be named soon.

Local workshop

DONATED USED toys fill a large area of the basement of the Twin Falls Fire Department, a veritable Santa's workshop this time of year. Here Donald Whitaker, left, and Fred Webb sort through the stock for items to be repaired and refinished for needy children.

Christmas brighter because of 'Operation Santa Claus'

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's workshop time at the Twin Falls Fire Department, and without the help of the firemen, Santa would have a rough go filling the Christmas wishes of area children.

Spare time of all firemen, and some long overtime hours for many, are being used this time of year to repair hundreds of toys for children in Twin Falls who might otherwise not get a visit from Santa.

Throughout the year, the fire department collects and stores toy donations.

Many are in such poor shape they have to be discarded or become parts for the repair of others, but the talents of the firemen work some miracles in turning rusty and bent tricycles into shiny new looking gifts.

Clare Harkins, one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the project, has a project of his own going at home as well as helping at the department.

He, his wife and two small daughters, Mitzi and Tammy, work most of the year in cleaning and repairing stuffed toys, checking donated games to make sure all of the parts are available and working on jigsaw puzzles.

Dozens of these are donated, but each must be put together to make certain all of the pieces are present.

Although only 6 and 4 years old respectively, Mitzi and Tammy are "professionals" at fitting the puzzles together.

At least one room of the Harkins home is filled with toys, games and other gifts this time of year.

Firemen begin working on their "Operation Santa Claus" about the first week in December. With three shifts of about 11 members each putting in from three to four hours a day they have some 700 man hours over a two-week period involved in their favorite project.

In the event of fires or other interruptions, the firemen do some of their "volunteer" work at home.

About 15 to 20 tricycles and about the same number of bicycles are repainted, repaired and readied for Christmas gifts. In addition there are wagons, mechanical toys such as trucks, tractors, doll furniture and many games and stuffed toys.

Since the firemen's talents are not fitted to making doll clothes and repairing wigs, they count on women's organizations to take care of the dolls and most stuffed toys.

This year some of the College of Southern Idaho clubs are assisting with repair of donated dolls.

On Christmas Eve, the firemen, using their personal pickup trucks, make deliveries to some 60 needy families in the area. Each family gets a personalized box of gifts.

The names, ages and sex of each child in the family is furnished firemen and they attempt to provide a suitable gift. The recipients range from a few months of age to 16 years and some families include as many as eight to 10 children.

Deliveries are made in all parts of Twin Falls and as far out as the Labor Center housing area and sometimes nearly to Filer or Kimberly.

Some merchants donate new toys which have failed to sell by Christmas Eve and these add to the gift boxes.

Firemen say the work is considerable but the Christmas Eve deliveries make it more than worthwhile.

Help Santa

NO LONG WHITE beards, but Fred Webb and Mike Kicer, from left, are typical of the approximately 40 Santa Clauses in the Twin Falls Fire Department. They will repair broken toys, such as this tricycle, and deliver them on Christmas Eve to some 60 needy families in the area.

Busy family

ROOM FULL of toys at the Clare Harkins home gives some idea of what Mr. and Mrs. Harkins, above, and their two daughters have been doing the past few months. The toys, donated by area residents, have been readied by the family for needy children.

Project helpers

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER

TWIN FALLS — Out of the cold and into the warmth of your home come family, friends and neighbors and a festive welcome awaits them.

But, did you know there are more accidents in the month of December than in any other month and that homes are America's No. 1 fire hazard? This Christmas, "think safety" and apply some safety tips to protect you and yours from holiday hazards.

Cold weather puts extra demands on your heating system (57 per cent of all home fires are caused by defective heating equipment). A check by a competent serviceman could avoid problems.

Use a screen or glass front on your fireplace. Do not leave it unattended and do not burn gift wrapping, tissue or evergreens in the fireplace.

Be sure portable heaters have an automatic shut-off and place them away from draperies and furniture.

If you buy your Christmas tree early — keep it in a cool place (in water or snow) as long as possible before bringing it in for decorating.

Cut the base diagonally before placing the tree in water, container stand, and water often — a tree may absorb from a pint to a gallon of water daily.

Place the tree in the coolest part of the house and away from heat sources and open flames.

Check light strings before putting them on the tree. Look for loose sockets, broken or frayed wires.

Hang tree lights so bulbs come between branches and don't rest directly on them. If needles near lights begin to look brown, change the position of the bulb.

If you use metal foil icicles be sure there are none dangling near bulbs or light sockets.

Disconnect all Christmas lights before going to bed or leaving the house.

Never use regular strings of lights on a metal tree. Use a spotlight to illuminate this type of a tree.

When trimming the tree use only non-flammable ornaments. For example, angel hair by itself will not burn nor will spray-on flocking, but snow sprayed onto angel hair adds up to a combustible combination. Place cords away from traffic areas and heat sources. Do not place them under rugs.

Holiday arrangements for windows, tables and mantles are beautiful made with live greenery but they can burn very quickly. Attractive decorations can be made using noncombustible materials and strings of tiny electric lights.

If you think, however, that Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without candles be sure you handle them with extreme care. Never use them on or round the tree.

Do not use them in foam holders, most plastic foam will support combustion and give special thought to where you place them so clothing, draperies or furnishings cannot be easily ignited.

Design your decorations with a "light touch" to give them sparkle, color and individuality. With simple readily-available materials and light, plus your own ingenuity, you can make safe — beautiful, glowing ornaments for use in all your Christmas decorating.

A Lovelier You

FATIGUE FLOATS AWAY

By Mary Sue Miller

Try a "floating" bath when next you are bone tired. Floating induces a sensation of weightlessness that relaxes and rests every muscle. You know it's bliss, if you have ever floated on a warm, calm sea.

To prepare a floating bath, fill the tub with comfortably warm water to within four inches of the top. Mask the overflow drain beforehand with adhesive tape, as it will be awash at high tide.

As the tub fills, add your favorite bath bubbles or cologne to the water. Also provide yourself with a head and hip rest. Plump bath pillows are fine for the purpose. Tightly rolled, medium-sized terry towels will serve.

When all is in readiness, ease into the water and settle head and hips on the pillows. Now, go limp—really let go. As your muscles relax, your arms and legs will rise and float.

Soon you will feel weightless as eiderdown. Within 10 minutes your fatigue literally will float away. Even throbbing feet and tense lines around the eyes, even weary spirits and mind find solace in the buoyancy of water.

When you take a floating bath at bedtime, make a gentle sudsing and drying finale. Whisk dermatological spray for dry skin from neck to ankle, while the body is still damp. That way your skin gets the benefit of keratin while your nerves have a recharger.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now that the holidays are upon us, would you please share my unpleasant experience with your readers before it is too late?

Recently my husband and I hosted an "office" party in our new home. There were husbands and wives, some singles and their dates, and all but a few were total strangers.

We decided to confine our party to our huge recreation room area which is completely furnished with bar and rest room facilities.

During the evening we noticed a few guests roaming around the rest of the house on their own. After the party was over, my husband discovered that his wallet, which he had left on his bureau in the master bedroom had been emptied. I noticed later that a few small art objects were missing. We were shocked!

Thieving guests

Abby, how can a hostess keep her guests confined to a given party area without insulting them? When the florist suggested putting up "decorative velvet ropes" to indicate where there shall be no trespassing, we were appalled. Now I'm sorry we didn't.

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: Even "roping off" areas is not adequate protection against a clever thief. It's a pity that thieves must spoil it for the majority. The only advice I can offer is to "know thy guests."

DEAR ABBY: The wife and I are having a disagreement. I wish you would settle. Here is our problem: We have trouble meeting our monthly mortgage payments to the extent of always getting behind and having to pay late charges. We both drive old jalopies that nickel and dime us to death, and we are in hock up to our eyeballs, buying everything on credit and trying to keep up with the Joneses.

Our daughter is marrying a young man who is in the chips, so her mother went ahead and laid away a $300 wedding gown, and is planning a wedding like Lyndon Johnson gave for his girls.

Jennie Sue is a pretty girl, and she doesn't give a hoot for this boy. She is only interested in his money, but my wife says this is one wedding that is going to be the talk of the town. I'm sure is, when I file bankruptcy to pay the bills.

I said, "If this marriage lasts I will be a monkey's uncle, so why don't you just get Jennie Sue a $30 wedding gown and give ten bucks to the preacher and skip the frills and the bills?"

Whose side are you on, Abby?

BROKE AND DISGUSTED

DEAR B. AND D.: Yours, if you're telling it like it is. And I think you are.

DEAR ABBY: I was truly saddened to see the letters in your column from readers who wore dentures, because you gave the impression that false teeth were as good as natural teeth.

Abby, artificial teeth like artificial arms and legs, are a burden that must be borne by many, but no manmade substitute can compare with nature's originals.

We know that dental disease and tooth loss are brought about as a result of organized bacteria accumulating at and beneath the gum margin, and with proper care, the only reasons for further loss are ignorance, accident or total neglect.

If people will brush their teeth properly and faithfully,

Fancy That

By Norma Herzinger

TWIN FALLS — Winemaking fear of a bootlegging charge or is becoming quite a hobby for many.

I know several who make wine annually and think their has to be the best tasting of all. And, those persons on the receiving end of winemaking kits last year for Christmas have tried their hands at creating. And, they always seem so smug when they offer you a glass of their homemade nectar.

Speaking of winemaking kits, I read recently that the nation's largest retailers are projecting Christmas sales of home winemaking kits this year at over $25 million.

Seven manufacturers of home winemaking kits are advertising regularly on national television. In fact, one chain of home winemaking shops, Wine-Art of America, has opened nearly 100 stores in the last three years.

Which brings me back to my original thought — Since millions of Americans are gaining wine sophistication (by making their own), now they will get the chance to find out just how good it really is.

According to a recent news release, the I. R. S. Ruling 272 issued in June, 1972, allows for wine made at home to be removed for judging (without the reverend's coming after you). On Feb. 23, the first annual National Home Winemakers Competition will be held at the Westbury Hotel in San Francisco.

Many of the leading vintners, writers, retailers and researchers in the wine industry will serve as judges. At the same time, standards will be set for regional qualifying rounds next year. This year's judging will be conducted using international commercial standards.

No distinction will be made between wine made from concentrates and that made from fresh grapes. Dry gooseberry from Nebraska will compete with Pinot Chardonnay from California and apricot from Idaho.

Prizes will be awarded and a critique will be sent to every entrant. Sponsors for the event include the American Wine Society, the National Industrial Recreation Association and several prestigious wine publications.

Anyone interested in entering the 1973 competition should write to Gregory Moore, secretary, National Home Winemaking Competition, Box 1 8067, San Francisco, Calif. 94118.

Applications set for Gem projects

BOISE — The Idaho State Arts Commission is accepting applications for projects to be conducted between Sept. 1, 1973 and Aug. 31, 1974.

Suzanne D. Taylor, executive director for the Idaho State Arts Commission, said the applications must be submitted to the commission office by Feb. 13, 1973.

N C DENTIST

DEAR DENTIST: I'll take 20 lashes with 50,000 yards of dental floss! It wasn't my intention to minimize the advantage of "real" teeth. I only sought to comfort those who had lost theirs.

DEAR ABBY: I've read about so many divorced women whose husbands have married younger gals; while Mother stayed single and raised the children.

The saddest part is when the children marry, and the "new wife" attends the wedding with Father, and poor old Mother has to attend the wedding alone.

Having been in exactly the same spot a few years ago, here's what I did. I HIRED myself a tall, handsome, young escort from an escort service!

He was a part-time actor, and was very convincing in his role as a charming, interested gentleman.

Believe me, I never got more for my money in my life!

Holiday overseas calls set

TWIN FALLS — Local members of the Communication Workers of America No. 8110 are sponsoring five telephone calls to servicemen overseas during the Christmas season. Opportunity for winning the calls is open to the public, according to Mrs. Alice Glover, vice president.

Those interested should send a letter with the name and address of the serviceman, and a local name, address and telephone number to committee chairman Mrs. Janice Hill, 249 Polk St.

The drawing for the calls will be Dec. 17. Winners will be notified by telephone.

The calls may be made anytime between the drawing and Feb. 1. Five minutes of calling time will be paid for by the local union.

Popeye's theory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Popeye may have been a good sailor but he blew it on spinach. The cartoon character whose appetite for canned spinach made the vegetable a symbol of iron strength was off the beam, nutritionally, says the Vitamin Information Bureau (VIB).

Not only are many other common foods richer in iron, but the iron from quite a few of them is more readily absorbed by the body than the iron from spinach.

Frozen baby lima beans, lentils, white beans, chick peas, beef and lamb kidney and liver contain about three times as much iron as spinach, duck meat, lamb and turkey liver, blackstrap molasses and cottonseed flour also are way ahead of spinach in iron content. Even caviar, oysters, hard-boiled eggs, dried apricots, walnuts and pistachios are richer in iron than Popeye's favorite, the bureau added.

COLLEGE of Southern Idaho Madrigals, including the director, Gene Mildon, and accompanist, Holly Gordon, will present the program for the Twin Falls Music Club Monday. The event is set for 12:30 p.m. at the Turt Club. Mrs. David Mead is program chairman. Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Gordon Beckstead, 733-1958. The Twin Falls Club is an affiliate of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Program slated

More headlines than progress

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nutrition education and consumerism made more headlines than progress this year but the outlook for 1973 is more promising.

Most of the 1973 pack of the nation's largest fruit and vegetable canner (Del Monte Corp.) will use nutritional labeling. The new labels will list the calorie, fat, protein and carbohydrate content and the percentages of standard recommended daily allowances of 10 basic nutrients in each one cup portion of the company's canned products.

The meat industry plans to launch early in the new year a system of simplified identification and names for retail cuts of fresh or fresh-frozen beef, veal, pork and lamb. In a November announcement, the National Live Stock and Meat

Board, Chicago, said the program is expected eventually to standardize names at the retail level in all 50 states.

Three familiar names for ground meat may be abandoned in favor of more specific ones that indicate lean-to-fat ratio. The board said the probable new names will be 85 per cent lean, for ground round steak; 80 per cent lean, for chuck; and 75 per cent lean, for regular ground beef.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fashion gives women three directions to go in spring evening dress.

Select the caftan, the wide-legged palazzo pajamas, or the short, very bare formal.

At the American Designers Group moved this week into its series of fashion shows for the nation's visiting reporters, it looked as if the caftan is way-out front.

This loose flowing garment, whose heritage is the ancient East Mediterranean, already is the favorite silhouette in winter evening clothes.

One Broadway manufacturer got so carried away with the look that the other day he ran a full-page ad in a New York newspaper about caftans—spelling the word "caftan", and exed-out the "e", then he went through "caftin" and "cafton", ex-ing out the error again. The ad concluded with the correct spelling and the message, "No matter how you spell it we have them."

The caftan can be as bejeweled as a maharajah's gown. Or, another favorite way is to have it in two layers—the under one more body-shaping, the overlay a floating mass of print in brilliant or soft colors.

Designer Leo Narducci, who showed his collection yesterday afternoon, proved to be one of the most active supporters of the caftan look. His caftans and tents appeared suspended from matching slips. Or, they moved with the grace of a whirling dervish with yards of chiffon descending from shirred or lifted waistlines.

In the corner championing the short party dress was John Anthony, the 1972 winner of the American Fashion Critics award. Anthony showed numbers of them with circular skirts and simple princess shapes. The necklines usually were a deep U.

Some of Anthony's evening dresses were off the shoulder, others with shoestring straps. Anthony carried sequins right into spring in very sheer fabrics as the backing.

Colorado girl sets wedding

HAGERMAN — Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Lehfeldt, Longmont, Colo., announce the engagement of their daughter, Amy Ann to Wade E. May.

May is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence May, Hagerman.

May is a 1971 graduate of Hagerman High School and is engaged in farming.

Saturday party

SHOSHONE — The annual Chamber of Commerce sponsored children's Christmas party will be held Saturday.

There will be a free movie at the Rex Theater at 2 p.m. followed by treats for all present. Santa Claus will be there to visit with the children.

Matinee

TWIN FALLS — The final performance of "Bus Stop" will be a matinee benefit for the YM-YWCA swimming pool fund at 2 p.m. today. The play, by William Inge, is produced by the Magic Valley Little Theatre. Tickets will be on sale at the YM-YWCA building before the performance.

Road signs bring smiles to many

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (UPI) — You make time and cover distance in a hurry on the interstate highways but in turn you miss a lot of the fun of a motor trip. Especially if you're a sign buff. And I happen to be one... have been I guess since childhood when the "games to keep the children quiet" in the car included counting white horses and making wishes on each, or reading the Burma Shave jingles, or seeing who could count the most Mail Pouch tobacco signs on barns.

But the huge billboards and the smaller signs don't clutter up the interstate right-of-ways, although I must say, the service station people have found a way around this.

They've just mounted their gasoline brand on giant stilts, so tall they're visible for miles. And, of course to reach the station, you have to exit off the super-highways.

All is not lost however. During a motor trip my husband and I are taking, I found enough of them on the by-roads to hold until the next trip.

We had to smile (what else?) at the rotating cement mixer truck we saw at one construction site. It's body was painted clear blue and decorated with the now-familiar smiling face you usually see on stickers or badges.

And a motel in the same area was run by "The Bartlett Pair."

To restore moisture to hardened brown sugar, place a slice of apple on a piece of waxed paper atop the sugar again.

And the miners said, "Certainly we're going to make a big hole."

Here is an evocative account of the fight to save the largest wilderness in the lower forty-eight. Here is the story of Idaho's White Clouds, the Magruder Corridor and Hell's Canyon — and of how their defenders are being betrayed by politicians and federal agencies in a sellout to mining, logging and power interests.

Eastern styles popular

NEW YORK (UPI) — Through the years, East and West have met when fashion was concerned. Now, there may be a new surge of Eastern styles showing on Western women from the influence of clothes, ancient and modern, displayed the other day in New York.

Designers had given us a multitude of Chinese motifs keyed to the President Nixon visit to mainland China earlier this year. And now Nationalist China (whose capital is Taipei) makes its bid with everything from copies of an empress' wardrobe 4000 years ago to the contemporary, form-fitting chi pao (the Mandarin name) or cheong sam (Cantonese) with its side-slit skirt.

The occasion was a benefit fashion show the Physicians Wives League of Greater New York gave in cooperation with the Chinese in the United States, under direction of Mrs. James Shen, wife of the ambassador of Nationalist China to the United States.

All of the models were wives of prominent Chinese in the New York area. And you talk about China dolls! One wonders why rangy, leggy Western women even would try to copy the delicate East.

But copy they do. Consider over the years these influences — not all Chinese but certainly part of the Eastern culture.

The loose, flowing sleeve of the kimono for one. Or, the Mandarin collar with its throat-hugging cut. The Nehru jacket with its single-breasted, high collar line for men. The obi sash which we now sometimes call the cummerbund. The frog, that ornamental fastening for everything from rugged sports clothing to the most elegant evening apparel.

Add in the coolie hat — Garbo helped to make it a classic; the caftan (or djellaba or bur-noose) with flowing shape originally native to the Near East and now very much a part of the decorative evening dress for '72; the jade jewelry, all-anew vogue; the sari and the elaborate sari silks, and not the least by any means, the China silks.

The China silks are much again on the fashion scene. Nationalist China says that Taiwan exported $700 million in textiles last year, that this year the total will break the $800 million mark.

The historic costumes in the show were copies of priceless originals. The oldest had belonged to one of the wives of the last emperor of the Shang dynasty, about 4000 years ago. Its black and white ribboned skirt symbolized earth and heaven and its pastel sleeves lightened the contrast.

Holiday music galore

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — And Santa said: "Let there be music."

Music there will be, too, Christmas day—from recorders, melodicas, guitars and even from drums. They may sound otherwise but drums are musical instruments.

This tie between music and Christmas goes back to the first Christmas, according to legends holding that among the first gifts received by the Christ Child was a rude reed pipe. It was made by a shepherd to entertain himself while he tended his flock.

In centuries since, many children have awakened on Christmas morning to gifts of music.

Music stores offer an unlimited variety of musical instruments and accessories to meet every parent's needs and budget. For stocking stuffers there are harmonicas, tonettes, recorders, percussion instruments, melodicas for the beginner. Sheet music, guitar picks, a metronome or other accessories are for the youngsters who already play.

Harmonicas range in price from $2 to more than $50. Easy to play, these enable the child to perform along with the family or to accompany the radio, television or records, says the American Music Conference (AMC) in a Santa report.

AMC Report
Other points made in the report from the conference which has its headquarters in Kalamazoo.

Tonettes and recorders, both members of the flute family, are excellent learners' instruments. Tonettes, the simpler of the two, are available for under $2. Recorders, manufactured in both plastic and wood, can cost from $2 to $12. Both teach the child proper breathing and hand techniques for later study.

Percussion instruments, which seem to be the favorites of the pre-kindergartener, help the youngster develop a sense of rhythm and melody. Selling from less than $1 to about $20, this family of instruments includes rhythm sticks, tambourines, tone blocks, bells, triangles, drums, and xylophones.

For the slightly older child, the melodica is highly recommended. A miniature keyboard attached to a mouthpiece, this instrument introduces the child to fingering techniques for later study of piano, organ or accordion.

For the about-to-be amateur musician or the music student, sheet music or self instruction aids made a welcome gift. From the classics to the most current sounds and television program songbooks, a variety of materials are available for all levels of musical schools.

Hard luck Joe looked at the three of diamonds that West had led and remarked, "Too bad you used Stayman, partner. No-trump would be a far better contract than four spades."

Then Joe led his jack of trumps and finessed after West followed low. East was in with the king and led a diamond. West ruffed the second defensive trick and shifted to a heart.

Joe had to lead clubs later and had no way to avoid the loss of two tricks in that suit.

My usual luck complained Joe. "We had the same number of cards in each suit. The trump finesse was wrong and West got in a ruff. Everything happens to me."

"Shut up and deal."

grew North. He had seen that Joe should have made his contract in spite of all the bad breaks.

Do you see what Joe should have done?

Instead of talking, Joe should have put his brain to work at trick one. Then he would have cashed the king and ace of hearts before going after trumps.

He would still have played ace and another trump rather than take the finesse.

East would win the trick, as when Joe actually played the hand, and give West a ruff, but at this point West would have been dead. A club lead would take away one of Joe's losers in the suit and a heart lead would give a sluff and ruff.

"A Cook's Tour of Sun Valley" is just that. It is a collection of practical and unusual recipes, the favorites of many of the Sun Valley guests, longtime residents and new families who have moved to the resort area from all parts of the world.

Jean Dileman and Fay Tapper, authors, called on the chefs of restaurants in the area and the Sun Valley Lodge to pry their cooking secrets from them for the special book.

They also interviewed celebrities visiting the area, called on the wives of sportsmen and the sportsmen themselves for game recipes and visited the well-known Basque cooks of Blaine County.

The result is a collection of more than 400 recipes, most of them the type of dishes the average housewife can whip up with no special preparations or long efforts.

Some of the offerings came from such persons as Mary Hemingway, widow of author Ernest Hemingway; Harry Holmes, manager of Sun Valley; Jack Hemingway, editor for Field and Stream; Art Linkletter, who makes a tasty cheese pie, and such chefs as those of the Sun Valley Inn, Warm Springs Ranch Inn, the Country Kitchen, and the pastry chef of the Sun Valley Inn.

Susan Corroch, Olympic skier, and her mother each provided a favorite dish and many of the ski instructors at Sun Valley who are from other countries and parts of the United States offered their specialties.

On the unusual side is a recipe for 3,800 persons. It is called elephant stew and is contributed by Vickie Gaves who says she hates to cook.

The book, which was printed by Standard Printing in Twin Falls, is divided into divisions including main dishes, jams, game sauces, desserts, candy and frostings, cereals, brunches, drinks, breads, game cooking and Basque dishes.

Mrs. Dileman and Mrs. Tapper who said they have had a lot of fun preparing the book guarantee cooks will have a lot of fun trying out the recipes.

The book resulted from a serious discussion of how to help raise funds for the ski education foundation program.

"I like to cook and Jean likes to eat," Mrs. Tapper said, "so the natural result was a cookbook."

It can be purchased by mail request to Box 222, Sun Valley 83353 and the two women say they will mail it anywhere for $4.50 including postage.

Plans are being made to offer the book for sale in book stores around the valley for Christmas shoppers.

Students selected soloists

BUHL — Two Magic Valley area students will appear as soloists with the Idaho State University Concert Choir today.

Lucinda L. Reinke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval E. Reinke, Buhl, will appear as the soprano soloist in "The Song of Mary" by Katherine K. Beard.

J. F. Eilers, Rupert, will also appear as soloist.

The concert, which is free to the public, will be presented in two performances at 4 and 8:15 p.m. Both will be in the Goranson Hall Auditorium in the ISU Fine Arts Building.

Miss Reinke, a graduate of Filer High School, has appeared on several other occasions as a soloist with the ISU choir, and has an extensive music background.

Also a member of the choir is her sister Sheryl. There are three sets of sisters in the choir.

Early start

NEW YORK (UPI) — Girl Scouting was founded in the U.S.A. in 1912.

There were 18 girls in the first two troops and GSA says 11 of the 18 originals still are living. Almost 32 million girls, men, that's right, and women have been Girl Scout members in the U.S. since the founding in 1912.

Hypertension could kill

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cool it! The slang term could be one of your best protections against and treatment for an ailment that affects an estimated 20 million to 25 million adults in the United States.

The ailment can become a killer too, especially in the setting it provides for atherosclerosis, a kind of hardening of the arteries that leads to coronary disease. In all its ways, it's an element in the death of as many as 730,000 Americans a year.

The ugly medical term for it is hypertension. Or, call it high blood pressure. Its causes could be many — and yet doctors really haven't zeroed in on conclusive answers. Its treatments also are many but there is no real "cure" for it, although therapy including a whole arsenal of drugs can keep the hypertension in check.

These points on hypertension are among those made in "Watch Your Blood Pressure," a new publication of the nonprofit education fund, American Heart Association, which is being distributed in New York.

Author is Theodore M. Lewis, who has written extensively on health and social problems.

One strong point Lewis makes in his review of knowledge to date is: "Have you been overly tense, perhaps worrying too much? You can do much to ease nervous tension by reviewing the way you've been living and applying moderation whenever and wherever possible. Get members of your family to cooperate by explaining what you have learned about the factors that could adversely affect your blood pressure. Your spouse and children should not create explosive situations. Cooperate all the way with your doctor. Take your medication faithfully and stick with the special diet (it'll probably be low in fat and salt). Cut out cigarette smoking.

Irwin writes that smoking constricts blood vessels which boosts blood pressure. Drinking? While some persons react negatively to alcohol, he says, a moderate amount may release nervous tension and help lower blood pressure.

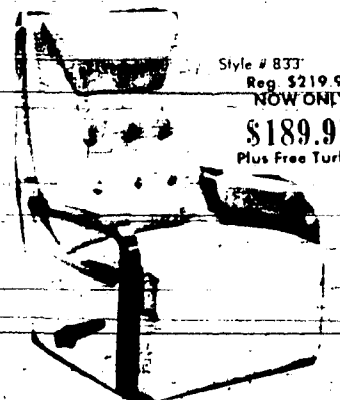

Don't try quick remedies, the writer advises. Once you have consulted a qualified doctor, rely on his advice. The publication says the chief danger of hypertension is in the toll it takes on vital organs of the body — particularly the heart, brain and kidneys. Stroke is one of the real hazards, but fortunately it is not inevitable.

BOISE TWIN FALLS

THE BON MARCHE

Janice Carroll, Klimes say vows

TWIN FALLS — Janice Marie Carroll, and Charles James Klimes were married Nov. 25 at the Twin Falls First Christian Church.

Rev. Ray Jones performed the candlelight ceremony before large orange candles in white candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Carroll, Twin Falls. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klimes, Kimberly.

The bride chose a gown of white dotted Swiss. It was styled with a square neckline and long full sleeves gathered to a cuff.

The gown fell to a 10-foot train. The dress was trimmed with daisies. Her veil featured matching trim. She wore a rhinestone and pearl necklace handmade by a friend of the family, given her by her parents.

She carried a bouquet of tangerine talisman roses centered with a white orchid. Julie Lynn Carroll, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Johnson, Heyburn; Cheryl Blackmon, Burck, Calif.; Dana Parrish, Logan, Utah; and Judy Knox, Twin Falls, all cousins of the bride, and Linda Simpson, Parma.

Raymond Klimes, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Ernie Klimes, Kimberly, brother of the bridegroom; David Carroll, and Charles Carroll, Pocatello; Wattle Whitaker, Twin Falls; and Bill Johnson, Boise, all cousins of the bride.

Patrick Carroll was ringbearer. Flower girls were Heather Cockran, Carson City, Nev., and Charlotte Carroll, Pocatello, both cousins of the bride. Jim Johnson, Heyburn, and Richard Carroll, Wenatchee, Wash., both cousins of the bride, were candlelighters. The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony in the basement of the church.

Decorations carried out the bride's colors of orange and gold.

The wedding party received guests on an orange carpet before an Austrian drape backdrop.

The round cake table was covered with lace over an orange skirt. It was centered with a five-tier wedding cake baked by Mrs. Merlin Carroll, Pocatello, and decorated by Mrs. Diola Willoughby, North Bend, Ore., assisted by Mrs. Jay Reynolds, Idaho Falls, and Mrs. Denzil Satterwhite and Shirley Satterwhite.

The cake was decorated with orange rosettes, gold chrysanthemums and sugar bells and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. It was surrounded by four three-tier cakes.

All candles used for the wedding ceremony and the reception were made by Mrs. Eugene Messner, cousin of the bride.

The guest table was placed next to a decorative water fountain. It and the quartet tables were covered with floral lace over orange skirts. Vicky Green, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Judy Craig, JoAnn Sievers, Carla Klimes, Lila Whitaker and Jeanne Johnson, cousins of the bride, were in charge of the gift table. Mrs. Willoughby served cake, assisted by Agness

POLLY'S

DEAR POLLY—When thawing frozen strawberries, I find it much better to place the uncovered container in the refrigerator the day before they are needed. They stay firmer, hold their shape better and are more pleasing to the taste. Thawing at room temperature seems to make them soft and slick. —MRS. D. B. D.

DEAR POLLY—If you have a tape recorder, keep some tapes of your children's favorite stories. When you do not have time to read to them, they can listen to the tapes and will enjoy the novelty. —RUBY

DEAR POLLY—Every Tuesday, I walk about three blocks to the beauty shop. I carry a large paper bag to pick up the litter along one side of the road. On my return home I pick up litter on the other side. I not only get exercise bending and stooping over, but I help to keep our wonderful city cleaner looking. —MRS. F. W.

DEAR POLLY—I slip a new bag of flour into a plastic sack to catch any spill-over. When the flour bag is empty I shake whatever flour that has fallen into the plastic bag into the next bag I use. —MARIE

DEAR POLLY—I finally discovered that using a cotton swab dipped in the cleaning solution I am using for the rest of my blender is great for cleaning between the eight buttons. —LINDA

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—After scrubbing my foam-backed plastic placemats and rinsing them under the faucet, I place each mat between two or three terry towels and roll the water out of the foam with my rolling pin. This works wonderfully and is so quick. —TERI

DEAR POLLY—My son has broken his arm twice. Often it was a struggle for him to put his sling on alone, such as during the night. My husband came up with a great idea for a sling replacement. He took his leather belt, fastened it at the proper place and left it on our son's bedside table at night. It was simple for him to slip the belt over his head and then under his arm. This worked beautifully. —GLORIA

DEAR POLLY—Cleaning the ceramic tile in the shower used to be a real chore with all that soap scum. Recently, I tried DRY steel wool. This quickly cleaned the scum off and no other cleanser was needed. —BETTY

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ERNEST BORGNINE

You won an Academy Award in 1955 for "Marty." Looking back at it after all of these years, do you think it has helped you or hurt you or not made any difference?—G. A., San Pedro, Calif.

● I think it helped me. At that time the Oscar was more respected than it is today. There are so many awards these days; just look at the Emmys alone! And look at all the silly publicity about an actor—and I won't mention anybody's name—refusing to even accept an award that should be the greatest honor anyone can bestow on a man. At the time I won the award for "Marty," it meant even more to me because it was a small picture against all the big ones that were up for awards, and I was competing against people like Frank Sinatra, James Dean and Spencer Tracy. It opened a lot of doors for me. Most of all, I've tried ever since to prove that I wasn't just a flash in the pan. It made me work that much harder.

FOR LISA KIRK, singer

I never knew anyone named "Lisa" until you became a show-business "name" back around 1950. Now there's a whole generation of Lisas. Do you feel you started it?—M. Lincoln, Kingston, N.Y.

● Lots of people tell me they named their daughter Lisa after hearing my name. I found out about one very recently. On a plane to New York a man told me that his daughter was born just after he and his wife saw "Kiss Me Kate," and they decided "She has to be a Lisa!" There seem to be more Lisas than when I started in show business. Isn't that nice?

FOR HUGH O'BRIAN, star of NBC's "Search"

You've dated some of the most beautiful and most prominent women in the world. Which one did you enjoy dating the most?—Mrs. L. N. G., New Albany, Ind.

● Princess Soraya—when we were alone. When we were in public, she was very up tight. She is a lovely lady.

FOR DR. MICHAEL FOX, author of "Understanding Your Dog"

When dogs bark at each other, are they talking?—Jen Ohta, Stockton, Calif.

● No, they are not talking as such, but in a sense they are signaling. "Hi, it's me!" or "Look out!" or "Look at me!" Wolves only bark as a threat, but domestication has made their dog cousins bark at the drop of a hat—to threaten intruders, to answer other dogs and to solicit attention (a noisy wolf wouldn't last two seconds in the wild).

FOR DANNY BONADUCE, Danny Partridge of "The Partridge Family"

What is the hardest part of being a 13-year-old actor in a hit series like "The Partridge Family"?—Larry Smith, Santa Ana, Calif.

● Acting! I mind the long hours of work. I mind the short hours. I mind five minutes! The second hardest thing is trying to find some privacy for myself. I can hardly believe it. People will recognize me in a car going 65 miles an hour! They'll shout and point—then wonder if they really saw me. I can imagine them living in suspense all day.

FOR CONNIE STEVENS

Frankie Laine says he doesn't like having friends in show business. Do you feel the same?—C. Marx, Kingsport, Tenn.

● Not really. But at the same time, I miss people who are no longer part of my life. Some of them have died. Others outgrew me, and some I've outgrown. If we'd get together, we'd be bored with each other. I think this is a part of life. You change. People change.

FOR SHARI LEWIS, owner of the puppet, Lamb Chop

You seem to have a great feeling for animals. Are you a vegetarian?—F. L. R., Stockton, Calif.

● Nope. I eat all the meat on the table. But there is one gift I'm tired of getting whenever we have guests. Somebody always brings a package of lamb chops, U.S. Choice straight from the meat counter, and presents it to me.

FOR FRANK McCARTHY, producer of "Patton"

How did television get permission to run such a recent movie as "Patton"?—W. L., Lancaster, N.Y.

● It will be several years before enough young people have grown into movie age to make a re-release profitable. The ABC-TV offer was very tempting, so 20th Century-Fox decided to let "Patton" go for one screening only. Afterward, "Patton" will be retired for a minimum of five years and then returned to the theaters.

FOR TOM HARMON, Sportscaster and Heisman Trophy Winner

Your son is playing college football this fall. How do you feel about his playing on artificial turf?—Mrs. C. A. Hardin, Biloxi, Miss.

● I'm nervous whenever I see anyone playing on the artificial turf. I feel that the folks who make artificial turf have pulled off the biggest sale of an untried product in history. Players tell me they suffer many more "bruising type" injuries and can't hold their footing. I'm happy they didn't have artificial turf when I played.

FOR SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER of Arizona

Why were you so quick to protect Nixon on the Watergate bugging incident? You weren't so easy on President Johnson during the Bobby Baker case in 1964.—B. F. E., Watertown, N.Y.

● Mr. Johnson had a much greater opportunity to know what Baker was up to than President Nixon had to know what the Watergate buggers were up to. It's ridiculous to suggest that President Nixon is somehow responsible for the Watergate affair. I believe the American people are to be congratulated for their maturity and poise in not letting the arch liberals get away with their sordid attempts to inject false issues into the campaign.

FINAL NET VS. HAIRSPRAY

Clairol's new Final Net® is the first real alternative to hairspray. Here's why:

Final Net isn't a hairspray.

It's a clear mist that will hold your hair 3 times longer than the leading hairspray.

Final Net isn't an aerosol.

It has a powerful formula no aerosol hairspray has. So it will hold your hair in any weather without leaving it tacky. (And it contains no wasteful propellant.)

Final Net is economical.

You get 3 times as many applications per ounce from a bottle of Final Net as you do from a can of hairspray.

Already, more than 100,000 hairdressers depend on Final Net.

So if you can't depend on hairspray, don't use hairspray.

Use Final Net instead.

Polly Bergen, Beauty Expert: "People Are Like Clay to Me. I Sculpt in Living Clay"

Polly and her daughter P-K.
"Makeup's primary function is to create instant illusion."

Polly Bergen has worn many hats: singer, actress, wife, mother, humanitarian—and, since 1967, dedicated businesswoman. She recently separated from Freddie Fields, head of Creative Management Associates, a top talent agency.

Q: After having had such a successful career as an actress and singer, why did you decide to go into the cosmetic business?

A: I was blessed with one of those peaches-and-cream complexions without a flaw anywhere on my body. Then I came out here to California, decided I had to get a glowing tan like all the other healthy specimens walking around—and ruined my skin. One day June Jacobs and I were playing bridge and she told me about a chemist who would help me find a formula to prevent the drying of my skin. We tried at least 17 different formulas until he hit on the right one for me—Oil of the Turtle. My friends were impressed by the results and wanted some too. Before long, I was filling orders. Then some department stores heard about it and wanted it too. June and I went into business and formed The Polly Bergen Company.

Q: Do you get complaints from ecologists who say you are killing off turtles to get the oil?

A: Yes, but they're wrong. We don't destroy turtles to get it. The oil is a byproduct of the turtle meat industry. If it wasn't, I wouldn't have gone into business!

Q: How does your ideology differ from that of other cosmetic firms?

A: I'm trying to reeducate the woman who has been lied to and fed fairy tales about products that supposedly erase lines miraculously eliminate wrinkles

This Christmas, do it up right.

This Christmas, do the house with Super Kem-Tone® latex wall paint.

It goes on easily. Dries to a scrubbable finish. And you clean up brush, roller and hands with soap and water.

Super Kem-Tone. It's at your nearby Sherwin-Williams store listed in the Yellow Pages.

and all that other baloney. I'm realistic and blunt. Sometimes my customers wish I'd lie a little. But I don't. The important thing is to get across to every woman that treatment is a long range preventative. Makeup is corrective. Makeup's primary function is to create instant illusion. Second, it is a color. I treat every woman as an individual, which she is. If I don't have the right stuff for her, I send her off to another counter to get something from a competitor. People are like clay to me. I sculpt with live beings. And a woman can look like she's had plastic surgery with the right makeup applied correctly.

Q: You sound as if you are thoroughly dedicated to your cause. Have you always had this kind of drive?

A: I've always loved business! I've felt like this since I was a kid and gave home permanents to everyone on my block. But I also loved show business, and it was that drive to succeed that destroyed my first marriage. I was determined that I'd never get married again until I found a man who was more important to me than my show business career.

Q: And did you find such a man?

A: Yes, in Freddie Fields. After that, my acting career was little more than a hobby.

Q: For a "hobby" it paid off quite well, didn't it?

A: I won an Emmy for my role as Helen Morgan. That's because I was a better actress once that pushiness and forcefulness had relaxed a bit. I had more film offers after that than I knew what to do with, but I turned them all down because it meant going on location and being away from my husband.

Q: Doesn't your cosmetic business take you away from home a lot?

A: I go to my office and apartment in New York, and on tour one week out of every month. But I make sure that every moment away from my home and family is made use of—and it is exhausting! I try to make it only a small disruption in our lives. I talk to the children every day that I am gone.

Q: How many children do you have?

A: Kathy is Freddie's child by his first marriage. She's 24, and has her own apartment. I've raised her since she was 9 so I feel she is mine! P-K—that's what we call Pamela Kerry—is 15 now, and Peter is 12. Both P-K and Peter are adopted.

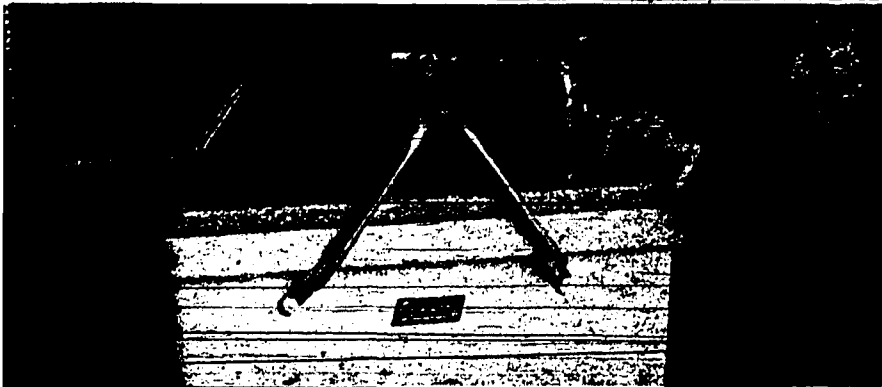

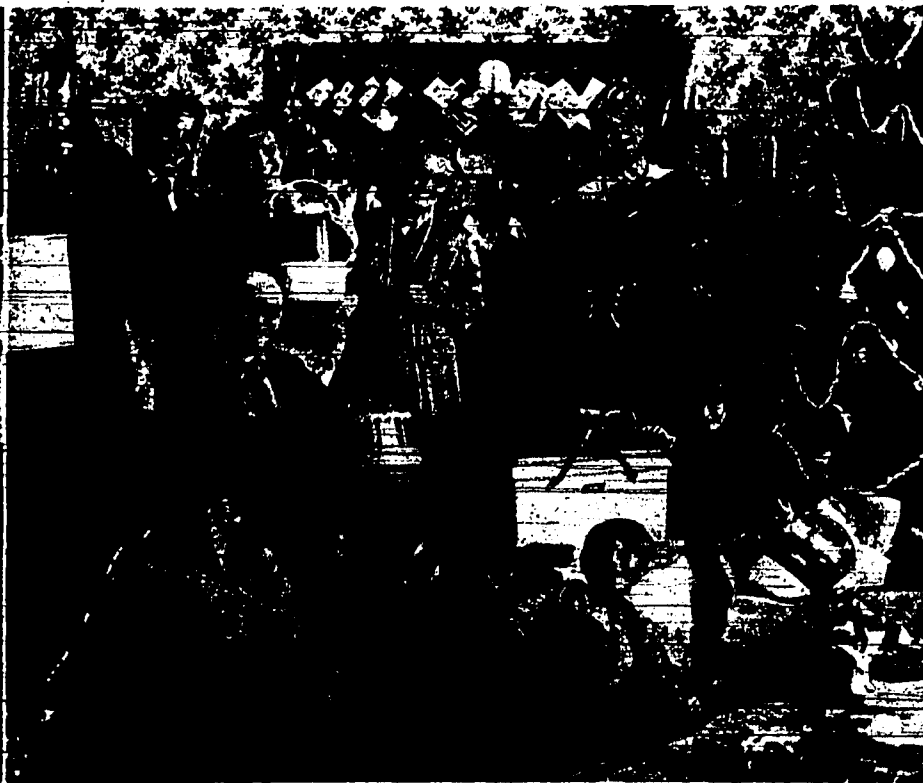

Q: Do you think your business interest had anything to do with your present separation from your husband?

A: We both got too involved. I don't think we had our priorities straight. I just got involved in everything one hundred percent! It's not the money I've never cared about that I can't budget if I have to and once lived on $19 a week when I was a short order cook and worked in a drugstore. It is the PRIDE of the thing that makes me work so hard.

Q: How did you tell the children about your separation?

A: I told the girls first, then, because Freddie was out of town, we held up telling Peter for a week. I simply told them that

Billy's Last Fight: A Boxer's Greatest Christmas Gift

By Martin Abramson

It was Christmas, 1923. Heavyweight Billy Miske was dying. He needed the money to give his family one last decent Christmas. And the only way he knew to get it was in the ring, against a man who had almost beaten Dempsey....

Billy Miske had a particular reason for feeling emotional about the approach of Christmas in 1923. He was convinced it would be his last one and he had an obligation to do something special for his wife and kids.

Miske was one of the better heavyweights of his time. He'd been in 105 bouts and had fought the best—Jack Dempsey, Tommy Gibbons, Battling Levinsky, and Harry Greb. Only Dempsey had been able to knock him out. But at 29, Miske had an incurable kidney ailment called Bright's Disease.

He was blonde and muscular and his illness was not apparent on the surface. He had kept it a secret from everyone except his manager, Jack Reddy, and of course, the doctor who had diagnosed it. One sportswriter, George Barton of the Minneapolis Tribune, found out about it but agreed to keep the secret. When sharp, shooting pains forced Miske to stay in bed for a few days at a time, the fighter would tell his wife that he had "kidney trouble, but nothing serious." He kept on taking fights even though his doctor had advised him to quit.

Miske put all the earnings from his bouts into an automobile sales business in the belief it would provide for his family after he was gone. But during the periods he was away training, the business went into bankruptcy.

Early in 1923, the fighter's condition took a sharp turn for the worse and he accepted the impossibility of fighting again. But his debts mounted and he had to sell most of the furniture in his home to feed his family. A sign in a storefront window about a forthcoming Christmas display helped trigger a decision born of desperation. He called his manager and insisted he get him one more bout.

"My God, man, it could kill you!" Reddy told him. "I won't do it."

"Look Jack, I've got to get some money to give my family a decent last Christmas," Miske pleaded. "If I die because of the fight, it won't make much difference. You know I can't last much longer anyway."

Reddy reluctantly gave in and booked a fight with Billy Brennan to be held in Omaha. Brennan was tough—he'd been leading Jack Dempsey on points for 12 rounds before being caught for a K.O. When Barton, the reporter, heard about the Omaha fight, he exploded. He threatened to blow the whistle about Miske's condition. But Miske rushed to his office to explain his circumstances and beg that he continue to keep the secret. Barton obliged him.

Miske usually trained for fights in his home gym in St. Paul. But this time he announced he would work out in a gym that had been rigged up in his manager's cottage on Lake Johanna. Reddy sent out reports of Miske training at the camp, but actually Billy spent most of his time in bed, conserving his strength. When he got to Omaha before the fight, he had to put on a couple of public workouts, but he cut them very short. The illness that was killing him internally still did not show externally and he seemed fit enough. The medical examinations for fighters in that era were very superficial. Nobody checked on Miske's kidney condition, and he passed his test.

Miske knew that the only possible way he could win the fight was by an early knockout. Fortunately, he still had a strong punch, and Brennan had not completely recovered from his knockout by Dempsey. Miske managed to put all his waning resources together for three rounds and the crowd cheered him as the "St. Paul Thunderbolt" of old. Just before the end of the third, he caught Brennan with a hook that floored him. In his corner, Miske prayed that Brennan would not be able to come out again. For a moment, it looked as if Brennan would quit on his stool, but he managed to get up for the fourth round. He was still in a daze from Miske's last hook, however, and it took only one powerful right for Miske to finish him off.

The sports pages the next few days were full of praise for the "St. Paul Thunderbolt," and they talked up future fights for him. Meanwhile, Billy collected his $2,400 purse and hurried to spend it. He bought couches, chairs, and lamps to fill up the empty rooms of his house, and, as a special Christmas present to his wife, bought her the piano she'd always wanted. He got bicycles and sleds for his two boys and dolls for his little daughter. He sent some money to his parents and gave whatever was left to his wife to provide "the biggest Christmas we ever had."

He was in severe pain on Christmas eve. His wife and children had to trim the tree without him. But he felt a little better the next day, assured his wife his "kidney trouble" was getting better, and sat cheerfully at the head of the table for Christmas dinner. "Greatest Christmas ever," he kept saying.

On the morning following Christmas, he was in agony. He called Reddy on the phone and cried, "You've got to get me to the hospital." When Reddy's car arrived, Miske told his trembling wife the truth for the first time.

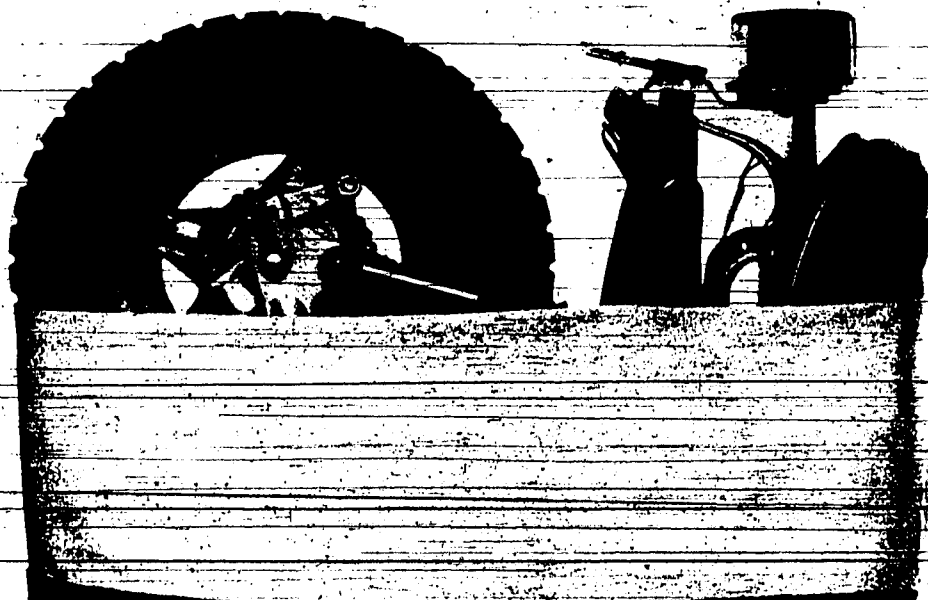

Billy Miske fighter to the end—died early on New Year's Day.

"I Love to Play Games— And I Like to Win" their father and I loved them very much, and loved each other very much, but that we had a problem in communicating. We'd tried to work it out together, but hadn't been able to do so. Neither one of us was able to find the time to work out a solution. By separating we forced ourselves to make dates with one another—not take the other for granted. I told them I thought we had a good chance of working it out, and we'd fight to do just that. After all, we'd had marvelous years together.

Q: How did they react?

A: Kathy was very understanding. In fact, she was my strongest shoulder. It was toughest on P.K., although on the surface she was the strongest. But it is a very difficult age for her. At 15, she idolizes her father. She feels he has left her. As for Peter, I don't think it has fully penetrated yet.

Q: How has the separation affected you? Have you cut down on your work load or taken on more in order to fill the gap in your life?

A: I've cut down on my work. I've pulled out of a number of charity organizations. Before it had been impossible for me to say no to anyone. I was afraid they'd react unfavorably toward me if I turned them down. Now I realize I can deal with that. My priorities are falling into place too. I've even moved my L.A. office into my home. This has been a big help! Now I have much more time—and am home that much more.

Q: Do you find you are less anxious to succeed now?

A: I still want to succeed in whatever I do—work or marriage or play. For instance, I wanted to learn French so I took lessons. But not one or two hours a week. Oh, no! I had to take three hours every day, five days a week! I even took backgammon lessons. I love to play games—ALL kinds. And I like to win. I am an avowed bad loser and, to be frank, a worse winner. When I was on "Tell the Truth" all those years, if I lost I pouted and called the winner a cheater. And when I won I gloated! Of course, I wasn't vindictive. I was only doing openly what everyone else secretly wanted to do!

Q: Do you have any intention of continuing your show business career?

A: I am no longer in show business!

Q: Then do you see a day when you will also quit the cosmetic business?

A: No. In fact, I have visions of myself at 93, tramping off to the office to work relentlessly on something new. We are always researching—and creating. In time I believe cosmetics can stop the aging process. We'll have pills to change your coloring. I firmly believe that within the next ten years there will be untold breakthroughs!

Q: What kind of breakthroughs?

A: There are already pills—not put out by my company—that you can take to keep from sunburning. There are lotions on the market that will turn you tan. I brought out "Inner Lights," an outstanding face sun tint. Why not a pill you can swallow to change your pigmentation? Science has learned how to treat the child in the womb; science can create cosmetics that can be taken internally. People may not agree with me, but in time I think we'll find a way to stop getting old, stop losing hair, turning gray. I am absolutely convinced of this.

Q: What makes you so sure?

A: The dictates of change. I've come out with the Tortue Body and Bath Collection body products. There was a time when a woman wouldn't discuss her body. She kept it hidden. Now women in many countries go bare breasted on the beach and wear see-through clothes. Women can't afford to let their bodies go to pot thinking no one will see them—because everybody will see them. These changes in customs bring about changes in diet, sleep, bath treatments, perfuming. We live longer now. We demand a longer youth. That's what I'm working on.

Q: How do you promote your products?

A: I don't like to promote my products when I am a guest on a TV show—unless they ask me. Then I don't stop talking! Instead I rely upon my looks and, to some extent, on my past show business popularity to speak for me. If someone thinks I look good, they'll say "Hey her product must be pretty good. I think I'll try it!" If I let myself go, they'd say, "She doesn't look so hot. She must not know what she's talking about." So I must look my best, always.

A Celebrity Cooks

"Christmas at our house is always special, a family time. It also means a dinner I cook myself—a real catarama!"

Gail Fisher of TV's "Mannix": Cooking? I Do It With A Snap of My Fingers!

To TV viewers, Gail's known as Joe's faithful secretary Peggy on CBS's long-lived "Mannix" series. Actually, she's more comfortable at a stove than at a desk.

By Gail Fisher, as told to Helen Dorsey

I love to cook and enjoy good food! Cooking to me is an expression of love for my family. It's something definitely female, a womanly art!

Christmas at our house is always special, a family time. It also means a dinner I cook myself a real catarama! We usually have 25 people around the Christmas dinner table. Being a Leo, I love to entertain, and when it comes to cooking, I do it with a snap of my fingers!

Our Christmas dinner is often traditional. This year, like last, I'll probably cook up a big 28-pound Minnesota goose. I'll give it a sage-celery-onion stuffing. I don't have time to go out and get chestnuts and apples. There's a real art to roasting a goose: there's a lot of fat on the bird, so you have to prick the skin often to release it, get the skin nice and crispy. I get a big charge out of stuffing a big goose. We'll have candied sweet potatoes with pineapple and orange, and little creamed onions, made with a marvelous short-cut. (When I was a little girl you had to peel and skin those tiny little pearl onions, get the skin off just right, to make them pretty. Now I get canned onions, add mushroom soup, pour on garlic salt and add a little parsley. It's magnificent!)

For dessert we have several family favorites. My mother's recipe for flambe pudding is great. (My mother was a cateress—she taught me everything I know about cooking!) You steam the pudding, setting one tin into another filled with water. Then you just pour brandy on it (or apply a brandy-soaked cloth). It's gorgeous and tastes so good! There's also her recipe for carrot cake that's been in the family for a long time. You don't use butter in the cake, and cream cheese is part of the icing.

I find eating good food is one of the great sensuous experiences in life. There's something so marvelous about tasting something wonderful in your mouth, knowing about food and the right wines to go with it. I really have to give my mother credit. Even though catering is a profession, when we were doing it, it was done out of necessity. She always had great pride in her work. And, because of her, I feel the same way. I don't care what you do as long as you dig whatever you're doing, even if it's handling garbage.

Both my daughters (Samara, 13;

Jolie, 7) like to cook. Samara makes even better fettuccine and cotechino (cotechino sausage and lentils) than I do. She started out cooking when she was about 5, mimicking her mother like all little girls. She also beats me at pool and I'm teaching her to play chess now. She's now teaching the little one to cook.

Love and good food are for sharing, as is Christmas.

Gail's Spiced Carrot Cake is a recipe she learned from her mother, who was a successful cateress.

How to beat the high cost of steak

By Jeannette Frank

Nutritionist and author of The Modern Meat Cookbook

Nation of Steak Eaters Caught in Meat Price Squeeze

America's housewives have been caught in a dilemma. The average family wants to eat steak—broiled or barbecued steak—but most budgets can't stretch to accommodate the high prices. What's the answer? Some families do without steak and seek substitutes like ground beef or casseroles. Others turn to pot roasts or stews.

Most women just don't know enough about the meat they buy and cook for their families. Unless you know the facts about meat you end up paying more than you should or depriving your family of the kind of meats they enjoy most.

The following facts can help you serve more steaks without increasing your budget.

A Case of Supply and Demand

Less than 22% of all beef is naturally tender enough to broil or roast. These cuts include T-Bone, sirloin, porterhouse, rib and filet mignon. Since there are so few of these steaks, there's a great demand for them and you pay considerably more for them.

The remaining 78% of beef costs less because there is more of it and it is not naturally tender enough to broil or roast. Included in this category are flank, sirloin tip, chuck and round steaks. Most of these less expensive steaks are leaner than the high priced cuts. Because they are leaner, they actually have more protein, less fat and a richer beef flavor.

You Can Broil Or Barbecue The Less Expensive Steaks

Many people believe that less expensive, nutritious cuts like round and chuck must be pot-roasted, braised or stewed because they're not tender enough to broil or roast. This is no longer true.

Today you can broil or barbecue these cuts by preparing them with Adolph's Instant Meat Tenderizer. Made from the tropical papaya melon, Adolph's is a pure food product—as natural as orange juice.

STEAK OR STEW? The average supermarket carries over 100 cuts of meat. The average housewife spends 30% to 40% of her food budget here. She is continuously torn between her need to economize and her desire to please her family.

© ADOLPH'S LTD

When you use Adolph's your steaks come out tender, juicy and delicious every time. So your family can enjoy the best tasting, most nutritious meat available—and you actually save money, too.

Less Fat And Bone—More Edible Meat

Your savings are even greater than you think when you buy the less expensive cuts.

That's because there's far less waste in the form of inedible fat and bone. Did you know that about 45% of the weight of porterhouse is lost in bone, fat, and cooking shrinkage? So porterhouse ends up costing almost twice as much per serving as round steak, even though round steak is just as flavorful and nutritious. It has much less fat and bone. So you get a lot more edible meat per pound and you don't have to buy as much. The only thing round steak

Delicious All-American Steak Dinner: $1.29

For a family of four, buy 2 pounds of top round steak, cut $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ inch thick. Tenderize according to package directions. Broil 3 inches from heat, 5 to 6 minutes per side for rare, 6 to 7 minutes for medium. Or barbecue 2 inches from coals a total of 12-15 minutes for rare to medium. Carve across the grain in thin diagonal slices.

Serve with baked or french-fried potatoes, tossed green salad, beverage, gelatin dessert. Total cost—about $1.29 per person. For even better economy substitute great tasting chuck steak—tender instantly with Adolph's.

Gourmet On A Budget—Marinated Steak

For a flavor change of pace, marinate the less expensive steaks with Adolph's 15-minute Meat Marinade. Marinating is an ancient method of tenderizing and adding flavor to meat by soaking it in a liquid containing spices and wine or vinegar. Most marinades take hours or even days to work properly. But not Adolph's. It works in just fifteen minutes. It's a dry blend to which you add water, wine, vinegar and oil, or any liquid you like. You'll find Adolph's 15-minute Meat Marinade at the meat counter in your supermarket. It gives you a chance to be truly creative without putting a strain on your budget.

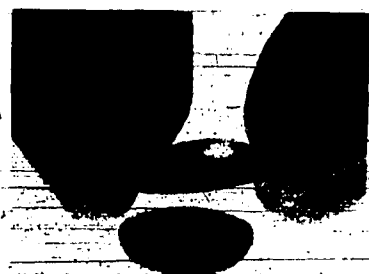

1. Porterhouse / Note heavy bone and fat
2. Top Round / Note absence of bone, negligible fat

steak is just as flavorful and nutritious. It has much less fat and bone. So you get a lot more edible meat per pound and you don't have to buy as much. The only thing round steak

This child has a devoted mother, good clothes, balanced meals—and Pin-Worms!

A tormenting itch in the rectal area, nose-picking and fidgeting are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. It can happen to anyone in any family—young or old, rich or poor. It's so common, medical authorities say that 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, have Pin-Worms without knowing it. And because Pin-Worms bring on itching and fidgeting, they can distract children and affect their school work!

What's more, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's P-W tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. For a free informative pamphlet giving medical facts about Pin-Worms, send name and address to Jayne's P-W, Dept. A6, Box 400, New York, N.Y. 10016.

RAYFORD ELY AND CRICKET

This man's best friend is a horse

Horses that think they are dogs: What sits contentedly by the fire, follows his master around the house, and likes to shake hands? If you're in the Rayford Ely household in Oakland Hills, Calif., it's a horse. Actually it's eight horses. They are all perfectly proportioned tiny horses of a miniature breed dating back to 16th century Europe. Mr. Ely bought several and started breeding them. His "first-born," Cricket, is fully grown at 24 inches and 75 pounds. "These horses are much more loveable than their big brothers," Ray Ely finds. "Through miniature breeding they have become more dog-like. They follow you around all day and muzzle up to you when you sit down. They're really better pets than dogs." Mr. Ely has been offered $45,000 for Cricket, but won't part with him. His other horses—valued at $8,000 each—weigh up to 85 pounds, and stand as tall as 34 inches.

Do you need two or three pairs of glasses? Zoom spectacles may be the answer for the millions of people with "middle-aged vision" who must switch from reading glasses to distance glasses to in-between glasses, or put up with cumbersome bifocals. Dr. Martin Wright, a physiologist for the Medical Research Council of Great Britain, invented zoom spectacles, which zoom in and focus on objects at any distance at the touch of a button. The entire area of the lens focuses correctly, not just the tops or bottoms as in bifocals. A British company is working out production problems now, says Popular Science, and the new glasses, which look like ordinary ones, should be on the market within two years.

ANTHONY QUINN How do you win a child?

Anthony Quinn finds love in discipline: "I was very permissive with my first bunch of kids. Because I was a product of the Depression, I tended to be permissive, to give them everything. When I was divorced, and later started a new family, I decided to assume responsibility as the patriarch, as my father had done. I adore my three young sons, I'm insanely in love with them. Every morning before we go out we go through the ritual of kissing each other. I'm a man obsessed with love for his children. But I'm also a strong disciplinarian. I insist they behave the way I had to with my father. I find these young boys totally different from my first family—not that I love those kids any less. Recently, as I was leaving on a trip, our eight-year-old, Danny, asked where I was going. I said I was going to tell people about my book, ("The Original Sin," Little, Brown, $7.95), which is about my father and how much I loved him. 'I hope some day I'll feel that one of you loves me half as much,' I added. 'You must be crazy, we love you more,' he said. I don't think one of my first kids would have been so open. I was so touched."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

ON THE UP AND UP

A ladder is a useful thing.
Atop a ladder I'm a king,
Superior to those below
Whose status is the status quo.

Atop a ladder far I see
And high I reach. I'm proud of me.
I prune a branch, I paint a sill;
By doing so I save a bill.

I am a hero, though unsung.
I'm standing on the topmost rung.
And where's my wife? Her arms enfolding,
She's at the bottom, firmly holding.

Punctuality is the art of guessing how late you can arrive without being late.

—Hal Chadwick
